Silent Liberals Seared in House

OTTAWA (CP) — Eldon Woodlams (PC-Bow River) called on Prime Minister Pearson Tuesday to resign and turn the reins of government over to a cabinet colleague.

Mr. Woodlams said in the Commons that the prime minister did not tell the truth in the House on three different subjects — the flag issue, the controversial television film Mr. Pearson and the government's role in connection with Banff's unsuccessful bid for the 1968 winter Olympics.

He accused Mr. Pearson of misleading and deliberately misinforming Parliament. The prime minister had a responsibility to resign according to parliamentary tradition, divine law and natural law.

The Alberta MP said the prime minister had told the Commons on several occasions that he had seen the film documentary about himself twice. But last Friday the prime minister had flatly denied ever seeing the film.

"One statement must be wrong. They cannot both be the truth," Mr. Woodlams said the prime minister "convicted himself" Monday when he did not reply to the same charge.

Mr. Pearson was absent from the Commons while Mr. Woodlams spoke in a supply debate.

He said the prime minister misled the Commons about a letter from a group of Ontario university professors last month criticizing the government's flag design. The prime minister had said the letter was unsigned when in fact it was.

"Again the prime minister did not tell the facts and the truth in this House," Mr. Woodlams said.

The prime minister had said on another occasion that the government was represented at an Olympic committee meeting when it was not.

The Conservative MP said the government has "given information dishonestly" throughout the Pearson film controversy and Alvin Hamilton (PC-Quebec) had been expelled from the Commons Friday for pointing up this fact.

The government was bringing Parliament into disrepute. David Pugh (PC-Okanagan-Boundary) said he did not know how the Liberals could sit quietly while these charges were made.

General Succeeds Lodge

Political Move Clears U.S. Asian Beef-Up

Taylor

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson announced Tuesday he is dispatching to South Viet Nam a combination of military and diplomatic talent. Its task is to turn the tide of battle against the Communists in Southeast Asia.

Johnson accepted the resignation of Henry Cabot Lodge as ambassador to Saigon and named General Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, to succeed him.

SAD TO LEAVE

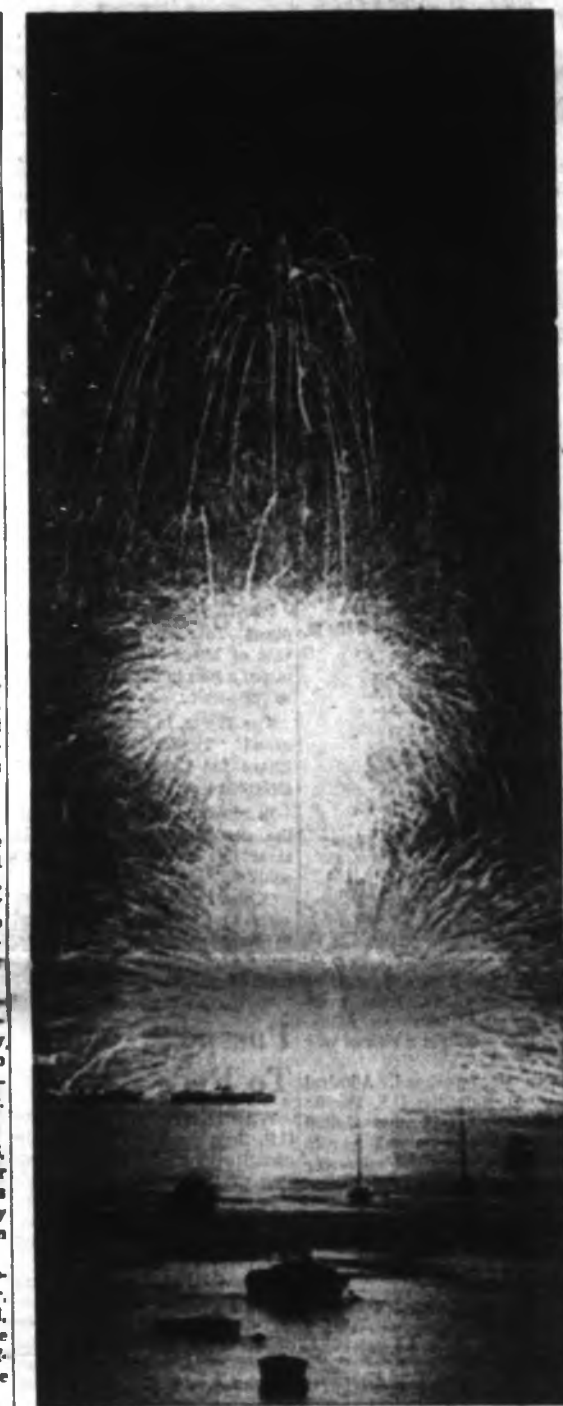

In Saigon, Lodge said that he was "sad to leave" after 11 months in the diplomatic job, but added: "I believe it is my duty to do everything I can to help Governor William F. Scranton of Pennsylvania in his bid for president."

Johnson told a press conference he will name a career diplomat, Deputy Undersecretary of State U. Alexis Johnson, to a new post of deputy ambassador at Saigon to assist Taylor.

Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, 56, was named to succeed Taylor as chairman of the joint chiefs of staff. Wheeler has been army chief of staff. His successor in that post was not announced.

In his biggest revision of top-level assignments so far, sources close to Johnson said, the president is seeking to make the best possible American effort to stop the Communist tide in Southeast Asia.

The move is the latest in a series of developments resulting from a basic administration decision.

Macy's grand finale: Deadly, too.

Congress Sees Expanded War

WASHINGTON (AP)—Many Congress members indicated Tuesday that the Johnson administration has decided it is willing to risk war with Communist China to prevent communist forces from overrunning Southeast Asia.

U.S. Bases Welcomed

TRA VINH (AP)—Premier Nguyen Khanh of South Viet Nam made it plain Tuesday he would raise no objection to use of American bases on South Viet Nam for operations against Communists outside its borders.

Laos Talks In Warsaw

LONDON (AP) — The British government disclosed Tuesday that secret talks have started with Communist Poland to arrange an emergency Laotian peace parley.

Announcing that exchanges have gotten underway in Warsaw, a foreign office spokesman told reporters:

Fireworks Blast Kills Two As 1,000,000 Look On

NEW YORK (UPI)—A fireworks barge exploded Tuesday in the Hudson River, killing two of its crewmen and sending rockets shooting toward a throng of about 1,000,000 persons lining the banks of the river for an annual fireworks display.

An hour earlier, another blast had rocked a national guard army where 500 young national guard troops were participating in weekly drills.

Fourteen reservists were injured, two seriously, when the explosion ripped through the 71st Regiment armory's sub-basement ammunition room at East 33rd Street between Park and Lexington avenues.

Hundreds of thousands of persons lining the shores of Manhattan's upper west side and the New Jersey side of the Hudson witnessed the barge explosion during the annual Macy's department store fireworks exhibit.

"At first, the crowd couldn't comprehend what was happening," one witness said. "Instead of going straight up into the air, the fireworks were roaring toward Riverside Drive at 30th Street."

Chan Gets Papers

VANCOUVER (CP) — William Chan has proved now that he belongs in Canada. Lawyer Harry Fung said Tuesday night that Chan has received his papers and is officially a landed immigrant. It has been a long wait — punctuated by 2½ years as a fugitive — for the man who came here from Hong Kong in 1958.

Palms

Doctors Outread Gypsies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Doctors reading your palm may be able to tell a far truer and possibly more unhappy story than the gypsies of old.

The knowledgeable doctor reading any part of your skin can tell much about what is going on inside, including the possibility of a heart attack. (See also Pages 2, 3.)

The story of the skin, the "mirror" of the body, was told Tuesday by Dr. Ben Kane of Vancouver at the annual convention of the Canadian Medical Association.

Traffic Signs

Dr. Kane, a dermatologist or skin doctor, said like traffic signs on the highway, the skin can tell the doctor to "stop, look and listen to the patient."

Expanding on his remarks at a press conference, he said a person with a yellowish, shagreened nodule on the corners of the eyelids could have too much cholesterol in the blood. Cholesterol is a fatty substance that has been blamed for causing heart attacks.

Diabetes, Too

He said rashes, itches and other signs can tell of diabetes within a patient and the lines of the hand could tell of abnormalities of development.

Changes in the hand when it was exposed to cold were an indication of a disturbance of circulation. A purplish-reddish color on the fingertips was an indication of Lupus Erythematosus, a disease that attacks many organs of the body and one that used to be highly fatal.

Storm Whips Into Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — A violent thunderstorm accompanied by high winds and heavy rain swept through southwestern Ontario Tuesday evening, leaving a trail of damaged buildings, broken power lines and fallen trees.

One unidentified Toronto man was struck by lightning and another was critically injured by a car. A man and woman were slightly injured in London when wind ripped part of the roof off a department store.

Attorney General Robert Kennedy cancelled his planned departure for Europe last night to keep in close touch with the situation.

NO TRACE

No trace of the young integrationists has been found since they dropped from sight Sunday.

The White House announcement said Dulles, former head of the Central Intelligence Agency, would confer with Mississippi officials in an effort to improve the state's racial climate.

DEEP CONCERN

The White House said that President Johnson had been in touch with Gov. Paul Johnson during the day, and that the president had expressed his deep concern over racial events in the state.

A statement issued by the White House said the president had asked Dulles "to go to Mississippi to meet with the governor, other officials of the state, the FBI and others who have information on the law observance problems that exist there."

WITH PRESIDENT

The parents of two of the civil rights workers, white youths from New York, were conferring with President Johnson when word came that the vehicle had been located. The president personally advised the parents of the development.

An FBI spokesman in Washington said the station wagon apparently had been burned Monday, but Mississippi Gov. Johnson said reports he received indicated the vehicle was still flaming when it was discovered.

VANISHED SUNDAY

The three youths dropped from sight Sunday after being detained on a traffic charge in Philadelphia, where they had gone to investigate a report of a Negro church bombing.

The three youths were identified as Andrew Goodman, 20, of New York, a Queens College student majoring in anthropology and sociology; Mickey Schwerner, 24, of Brooklyn, N.Y.; and James Chaney, 21, of Meridian, Miss.

PRIMARY GOAL

Goodman and Schwerner are white, and it was the parents of these two who conferred with President Johnson.

All three were participating in the "Mississippi Project" — a desegregation drive for which white college students across the nation were recruited. Its primary goal according to sponsoring civil rights group was Negro voter registration.

The station wagon was discovered about 12 miles north-east of Philadelphia, along state Highway 21.

Dulles

Florida Battles Continue

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP)—Negroes and whites clashed on the beach and on the streets Tuesday as civil rights demonstrators maintained their assault here on segregation.

During the third straight day of violence on the Atlantic beach, two women attacked praying demonstrators.

Hours later, a jeering crowd of about 70 white men and women met 80 integrationist marchers at the Slave Market Square and broke through police lines twice.

As the marchers walked around the square, gangs of white youths chased them. One broke through police lines and grabbed a white woman marcher and attempted to pull her away.

Another white segregationist spat in the face of a Negro marcher. They were both arrested.

The latest incident came as Governor Farris Bryant and Attorney General James Kynes were subpoenaed to appear in a federal court Friday to show why they should not be held in contempt for banning night demonstrations here.

Italian Honor 'Hangs in Air'

Can Vanier Keep His Award?

OTTAWA (CP)—Was Governor-General Vanier's recent award from Italy approved by the Canadian government?

Should it have been cleared first with the federal cabinet?

These two questions were left hanging in the air after a brief exchange between Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition leader Diefenbaker in the Commons Tuesday.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked whether any cabinet order altered this policy in any way, remarking his question was prompted by "an announced award to a Canadian within the last few days."

Nobody mentioned Governor-General Vanier but informed sources indicated it may have been in Mr. Diefenbaker's mind.

A government house spokesman said the Canadian government was not consulted about the award, made annually to heads of state.

The award to Gov. Gen. Vanier was made by the Italian government tourist agency for Rome province. It was intended as a token of gratitude toward Canada and a reflection of the personal goodwill shown by Gov. Gen. Vanier to Rome and to Italy during trips to Italy.

The presentation took place last Friday at Rome, where the Canadian ambassador, G. G. Crean, received it on the Governor-General's behalf.

Loss of Sex Power After 50 a 'Myth'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A panelist at the convention of the Canadian Medical Association said Tuesday more than 70 per cent of healthy married couples are sexually active "long after" the age of 50.

The revealed loss of power by men around 50 is a myth, said Dr. David Schwartz of Winnipeg.

Few statistics are available, but there are enough to quash misconceptions dating from the Victorian era when people of 50 or 60 were said to be "old" and "finished," said Dr. Schwartz.

Bonner Predicts Investment Boom

VANCOUVER (CP)—A boom in capital investment to a level close to $1,000,000,000 is predicted for British Columbia this year by Attorney General Bonner.

He told the B.C. division of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada that 1964 should exceed the boom year of 1957 when capital investment in the province reached $1,200,000,000.

Defence Plans Known Shortly

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer said Tuesday that the final decisions by the government on new defence equipment will be made in 60 to 90 days.

Mr. Hellyer made the statement after briefing the executive of the Canadian Industrial Preparedness Association on his department's future policy.

He said the department now has a fairly clear chart of the policy, roles and equipment requirements of the armed forces.

All Whiplash Neck Injuries Not Same—But Dangerous

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Your column on whiplash injuries was thorough up to a point. I feel that you neglected the seriousness of this type of injury.

Two members of my family, teenage girls, received such injuries when their automobiles were struck from the rear.

One girl after three years of every known therapy still suffers great pain and mental anguish. Her doctor says she is permanently injured and must curtail all activities that cause stress and strain. The other has made better progress and only occasionally suffers muscular discomfort.

Is there a chance of permanent cure for whiplash? Has anything new been discovered?

—M. J. F.

Whiplash is a neck injury which comes from a certain type of stress—the sudden whipping of the head forward or back. It is not necessarily the same injury in all cases. Most decidedly it is not the same in severity, either.

As to seriousness, it can be as you describe. It can be worse. It can paralyze or kill. It also can be no more than a minor annoyance for a few days.

Muscles, bones, nerves or cartilage can be damaged, or some combination of them.

Year by year new methods of therapy are being developed for all kinds of injuries, but not specifically for whiplash cases. Surgical and other care is steadily improving for wounds, but not for those from a single source. Basic improvements are not limited if a wound happens to be from a stab, a bullet, or being impaled.

MANY CAUSES

By the same token, care of neck injuries applies as much to a person who is injured by diving into shallow water as to one who is hurt in an automobile accident.

Unhappily, I have even had acquaintance with people who, from the moment they heard the word whiplash, began having—or thought they had—hilar symptoms with nothing to do with the neck injury.

Sometimes the most searching neurological tests are required to separate the real from the pretended. I by no means imply that whiplash injury is not necessarily serious. It can be. I do simply plead that the word whiplash be accepted for what it is. Just calling it neck injury might, indeed, be better for everybody.

Dear Dr. Molner: Which new better, natural vitamins or synthetic ones?—MRS. B. Z.

Chemically the vitamins are precisely the same. Scientists learned first that certain foods, or types of food, could prevent "deficiency diseases." Gradually the important portions of the food were isolated, and ultimately the vitamins themselves. At that point it became possible to make the vitamins synthetically.

NOTE TO MRS. E. M. B.: The cause of muscular dystrophy is not known, but hereditary factors are strongly suspected.

Ship Ahoy, M'Boy

Brought to Victoria last week by Douglas Rotary Club as their guest for three weeks, student Ralph Jahr, centre, of Marengo, Iowa, sees old ship figurehead during tour of Island Tug and Barge headquarters yesterday with Norman Ketcheson, 540 Normandy, son of club president Roy Ketcheson.—(Jim Ryan)

Young Iowan Guest Of City Rotarians

Seven Douglas Rotary Club families will entertain Ralph Jahr of Marengo, Iowa, during his three-week visit in the city.

The 16-year-old American youth is a guest of the Douglas Rotary Club on the Rotary Youth exchange program. His traveling expenses were paid by the Marengo Rotary Club.

Object of the program, which is worldwide, is to enable young people to see how people of other countries live and work, how they are governed, and to establish better relations between different countries.

Mr. Jahr will spend several days with the families of: Roy Ketcheson, 540 Normandy; Clive A. Kelly, 2700 Roseberry; Robert McMillan, 2929 The Rise; W. A. Pearson, 4425 Shelbourne; A. F. Rawlings, 505 Selkirk; C. Y. Spratt, 3000 Rutland, and J. W. D. Symons, 6801 West Saanich Road.

While in Victoria, he is visiting historical sites, the "high spots" and the points of interest.

He will return to Iowa July 10.

clion to prevent the North Vietnamese Communists, backed by Communist China, from overrunning all of Southeast Asia—even if this entails a risk of war with China.

Only last weekend, Admiral Harry D. Felt, the U.S. Pacific commander, said the United States is willing to risk war to prevent a Communist take-over in Southeast Asia.

Yet Tuesday's development was triggered not by the cold war but by the strange and sometimes unpredictable imperatives of the hot war of domestic politics.

It was Lodge's decision to come home and help Scranton campaign for the Republican presidential nomination that caused the biggest shake-up yet in the U.S. command structure in Southeast Asia.

Whether Lodge will only help Scranton seek the Republican presidential nomination, or whether he will wind up with some political prize himself, remains to be seen.

Lodge, the Republican vice-presidential nominee in 1960, has kept public silence about his own political aspirations during the pre-convention campaigning.

were being made. "These are charges that should ring across the country."

Erik Nielsen (PC-Yukon) said Mr. Williams was justified in his remarks—"and I endorse them wholly."

The Yukon member said Mr. Pearson lied in saying that "we do not censor films on this side of the House."

"I say, sir, that that statement is a lie and I intend to back up my assertion with facts."

Mr. Nielsen read at length from an article in the Toronto Globe and Mail about the film and he said he believed what the newspaper said on the subject. After reading the article it was "absolute nonsense" to suggest the government did not exercise some form of censorship.

For the last several months "the government has been using the CBC as a tool for its own propaganda purposes."

Douglas Fisher, (NDP, Port Arthur) said he believes political interference with the CBC took place before the film was cancelled.

Several cabinet ministers and the "coterie" in Mr. Pearson's office obviously had voted against the film after seeing a preview and this disapproval had come to the knowledge of the CBC management. A direct order to the CBC to kill the film had not been necessary.

Stuart Fleming (PC, Okanagan-Revelstoke) said those government figures who "minded the House" should resign. The government had been found guilty of censorship.

Mr. Nielsen then repeated his charge that Mr. Pearson's remarks declaring the government doesn't apply censorship "were lies."

Mr. Williams took the floor again for a second speech late in the sitting and said that all the prime minister—who was not in the Commons all evening—had to do was stand in the House and admit he had made an error.

"We are all human," Mr. Williams said. "The only ones around here who are superhuman are the Liberals."

External Affairs Minister Martin then took the floor to complain that charges made by Mr. Williams that Mr. Pearson misled the Commons were against the rules.

"You can say whatever you like but you cannot say he deliberately stated something he knew was not to be the fact," Mr. Martin said.

Bullet Kills Girl On Way Home Following Prom

NEW YORK (UPI) — A pretty teen-age girl on her way home from a graduation prom was shot and killed from ambush near Times Square early Tuesday while she talked in a parking lot with a former lady wrestler.

Detectives launched an investigation to determine whether the bullet was fired indiscriminately by the sniper or was intended for someone else in the parking lot.

HIT HEAD

Joan Wilson, 18, slumped to the ground in the parking lot alongside the Holland Hotel, rendezvous for wrestlers, when a bullet entered the top of her head and coursed downward to the nape of her neck. She was pronounced dead at the scene.

Her sister Margaret, 15, who had graduated from Holy Cross School nearby Monday, stood with her along with Mrs. Kathy Brazil, known in the wrestling ring as "Wimberley" and the wife of wrestler Bobo Brazil.

ARM GRAZED

Margaret's arm was grazed by a bullet, but required no medical treatment. Mrs. Brazil was not hit. She had left the hotel to move her automobile closer to the front of the lot.

The sisters had been in the parking lot for some time cavorting with other youngsters who also had attended the dance. Joan and Margaret were children of Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson. Mr. Wilson is a truck driver for the Acme Transit Co. of New York.

Khrushchev Talks Behind Stiff Guard

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Premier Khrushchev and top Swedish leaders began official business talks Tuesday behind a taut security screen of police, secret servicemen and tough army commandos.

The Soviet leader and Premier Tage Erlander discussed world problems and bilateral relations in a three-hour session in Erlander's office.

Meanwhile, Swedish police interrogated a 30-year-old foreigner arrested Monday on suspicion of "preparing dangerous activities." Swedish newspaper reports said the man was part of a group that planned to kidnap Khrushchev at machine-gun point.

"DREAMED UP" Police Supt. Aske Magnusson of Stockholm County termed the reports of machine-guns "a dreamed up story."

"The possibility that the whole affair has an innocent character should not be discounted," he said.

However, security forces guarding Khrushchev appeared to be even more on the alert than they were Monday when Khrushchev arrived.

Hoffa Plan Not Popular With Locals

NEW YORK (AP) — A major revolt against Teamster Union President James Hoffa's plan for a country-wide contract in the over-delivery industry shaped up Tuesday with locals from Tarrytown, N.Y., to Baltimore reported out on strike.

The east coast locals had rejected the pact earlier this month, but the international union ordered another vote. Scattered reports indicated the members voted overwhelmingly against it Monday.

Forgive the Duke Royal Family Asked

LONDON (CP) — The Evening Standard asks the Royal Family to welcome back the Duke of Windsor from his "virtual banishment and humiliating snubs" of 28 years since he abdicated the throne.

"Let his 'exile' be ended forthwith," says the newspaper's editorial on the duke's 70th birthday. "The Queen's uncle was long ago divested of his orb and sceptre. It is as a man that he now draws on our compassion."

Doctors Decide

Hospital Plan Won't Pay All

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's parliament of medicine Tuesday approved a recommendation that patients pay part of their hospital bills over and above what is paid under national hospital insurance.

Only Monday the general council of the Canadian Medical Association made it clear that it wants the patient to pay part of his doctor bill, no matter what insurance he carries.

SAME REASONS

The reasons are the same — there is over-use of doctors and hospitals and service is suffering.

Monday it was stated that doctor-sponsored medical insurance programs were "getting into difficulties." The same thing was stated about hospital Tuesday.

The council is meeting here in convention this week. It approved a recommendation from its committee on economics which asked the association to "request government to accept and publicize a modified and evolved concept of hospitalization insurance."

It recommended that patients pay part of the cost of their hospital care but did not mention a formula on how to do this. Dr. L. O. Bradley of Winnipeg said at a press conference that the $1 a day paid in B.C. by hospital patients is not enough.

The report sought sources of revenue for hospitals other than the hospital insurance schemes.

Moon Eclipse May Be Dusty

OTTAWA (CP) — The total eclipse of the moon tonight could be spectacular or a complete fizzle — and in either event won't be seen too well on the West Coast.

Overall effect depends on what has happened to huge quantities of fine dust which were spewed into the earth's atmosphere by the great eruption of the Indonesian volcano Agung on Bali in March, 1963.

That eruption virtually blacked out an eclipse of the moon last December, but scientists believe much of the volcano's dust has not settled back to earth.

Atlantic province residents will get the best view, with totality in Halifax from 9:16 to 10:58 p.m. ADT. In Victoria totality will run from 9:16 to 10:58 p.m. ADT. In Victoria totality will run from 9:16 to 10:58 p.m. ADT.

Freak Mishap Kills Navigator

DALLAS (AP) — The navigator of a U.S. Air Force B-52 bomber was killed Tuesday when a hatch blew off and he was sucked from the craft. He was not wearing a parachute, a base spokesman said.

The plane was on a routine training mission when the accident occurred at 13,000 feet 20 miles west of Dallas.

COAST TO COAST NEWSPAPERS SELL THE MOST

They Suffered Greatly

SHOWING an interest that does him credit, Victoria MP David Groos sought a parliamentary inquiry into the health of veterans of the ill-fated Hong Kong operations. It was talked out by a fellow Liberal, the parliamentary secretary to the veterans minister, who said it would duplicate a survey which the pensions committee is undertaking.

Mr. Groos, although a member of the Commons veterans committee, said he was unaware of any such survey. Most MPs agreed with him as to the need for an inquiry and took a dim view of what they considered a "procedural" dodge to thwart his proposal.

Victorians don't need any reminder of the severe hardships suffered by survivors of the Hong Kong expedition. They arrived here in such a pitiful state of health they had to be nursed at Gordon Head before being sent to their homes. Their condition was too shocking for their families to see, due to ill-treatment in Japanese prison camps.

Mr. Groos rightly pointed out they were "unique in the severity" they had undergone. Apart from battle losses 277 died in prison camps and no fewer than 180 died after the war. One out of 19 is now blind and many others suffer impairment in varying degree. There can be no question that special consideration should be given to them.

The Victoria member can be depended on to pursue his aims on their behalf, and it is up to the government and to Parliament as a whole to see that due recompense and attention is paid to men whose national service cost them so much and lingers daily to their serious disability.

Dodgers' Art

IT IS SOMETIMES amusing, often disturbing but always intriguing to witness the frequency with which our Canadian prime ministers employ verbal gymnastics in Parliament to dodge issues upon which their governments might not care to commit themselves.

Indeed, many citizens across the dominion have come to regard these antics in semantics so often performed in Ottawa as being a parliamentary practice distinctively and peculiarly Canadian.

That this is not so may bring a measure of relief to some members of the electorate, though it may well distress others.

Far from being a thing unique to Canada, the political art of saying what isn't meant and meaning what isn't said was originally evolved in the British House of Commons—an institution which still perpetuates the skill with all the professional ease of a champion.

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home provided an excellent example of how it should be done last week. Questioned as to whether his government was still interested in Britain entering the European Common Market, Sir Alec replied: "It is not a political issue today and I don't think it will be in the next Parliament."

He said that Mr. Harold Wilson (Opposition leader) who has challenged the government to state conditions on which it would enter the market, "goes thrashing about the country on the question."

"Mr. Wilson is beating a dead duck—and I don't think he will get a quack out of it," he added.

His statement was challenged the next day by a Socialist back-bencher who said: "We were pleased when you said the Common Market was a dead duck and could not quack. Will you tell the Commonwealth conference that for the next five years their economy will not be placed in jeopardy by any attempt by Britain to enter the Common Market?"

Sir Alec answered: "I said the political issue was a dead duck. As for policy, I have given many answers that there is no issue before us now."

That the tyro prime minister has proved so adept at performing such delightful verbalistic somersaults after such a short time in office should be enough to turn his Commonwealth colleagues green with envy. Even Mr. Pearson.

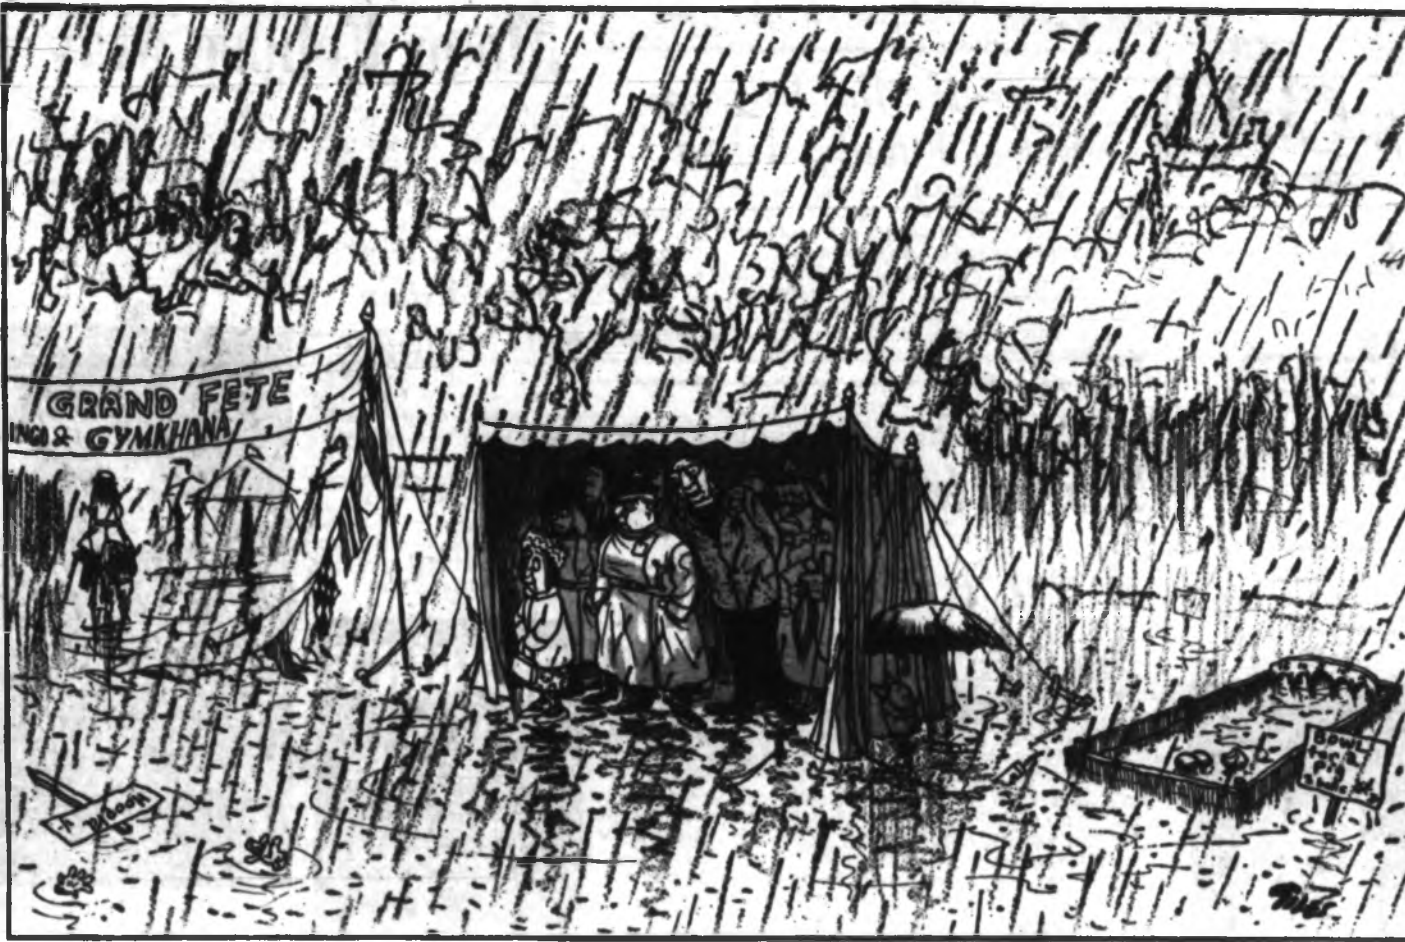

A Disappointment

THE REFUSAL of the federal works department to take part in an Inner Harbor Improvement project places a serious and most disappointing impediment in the way of a much-needed undertaking. With Ottawa's help, it would have been a practical proposition for the Capital Improvement District Commission and the city to have increased the utility and attractiveness of the boat basin. Without it, the project at present looks almost hopeless.

Because dredging of the foul-smelling mud would remove support from the base of the Causeway wall, Victoria wanted the federal government not only to do the dredging and to construct more mooring facilities but to share in the cost of a low-level pedestrian promenade to buttress the wall. It might logically be expected that with its harbor responsibility Ottawa would find both the dredging and the attendant shoreline safeguards in its purview. But at this time the works department doesn't, and will neither help reinforce the Causeway nor dredge unless it is strengthened.

The rejection if final puts the project beyond the resources of Victoria and the CIDC for a number of years at least, and no doubt will lead to consideration of cheaper means of achieving some of the same ends. It would be a pity however were expeditious to do Victoria's unique Inner Harbor settling less than full justice, and by precedent to permanently excuse the federal administration from its rightful share of harbor maintenance and improvement.

This circumstance suggests that patience is in order. Perhaps the CIDC could ponder putting away an annual allocation toward a future year. And certainly it is worth remembering that once in a while, the climate at Ottawa changes.

"Kindly ask little Miss Schaffie not to say, even one more time, 'Ah well—at least it'll keep the Mods and Rockers away!'"

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax ...
By TOM TAYLOR

SEA serpents and national flags don't normally go together—but this morning we shall take them in harness.

A reader writes to tell me of the origin of the Loch Ness Monster thesis. After the first war her brother, an RN officer, was assigned to test undersea craft in this stretch of water, and one day when chatting with the Abbot of the Benedictines near Fort Augustus he was told of a rumor being spread that a monster had been seen in the loch.

It seems, she relates, that some crofters on their way home from an evening at "bams" still, where unlicensed spirits of potent virtue were consumed with gusto, were startled to see something that looked like a marine "monster"—and so was born a music-hall joke of the 1930s.

After an appropriate good laugh it was decided not to disillusion anyone, and when my correspondent wrote to her brother asking if he was responsible for the "Loch Ness Monster," his answer was to the effect that the navy was silent on the subject.

Now, says my reader, look what's happened. However, she adds a canny hedging—"it could be."

It very well could. There is a record of sightings dating back to the 1870s, and even more remote records are traced to a monkish manuscript of AD 700. Moonshine merriment does not tell all the story.

Had the "monster" co-operated a year ago when with a busload of Victoria friends yours truly travelled for miles along the shoreline of Loch Ness I might have been able to pronounce a definitive verdict on this mysterious denizen of the deep.

But alas the cameras mounted in expectation must have been betrayed by the sea serpent's periscope. It stayed out of sight.

Another feminine reader regales me with a dip into history which she thinks should save feelings caught up in the future of the current flag issue.

We are all, in essence, mixed up together—Canadians and Canadians.

The Romans invaded Britain and, later, Shakespeare's tale was overrun by Germanic peoples, Angles and Saxons, as well as Scandinavian invaders. Nor did Frenchmen of the subsequent dominating Norman species grant the Saxons the freedom of speech and custom the Canadian is accused of not permitting to the Canadian.

Going still farther back my reader reminds us that the Saxons drove the original Celtic inhabitants north, west, across the Irish sea and some, allegedly, across the Channel to Brittany or France!

And from Brittany came Jacques Cartier to discover Canada. Had his ancestors been among William's bowmen at Hastings, my correspondent suggests, his name might have been Jim Carter!

My reader says when she was at school in England they sang a song which ran: "Saxon and Norman, and Dane are we; Roman, and Celt, and Norwegian free..." And that in the long light of this history petty nationalism and resentment, both Canadian and Canadian, are foolish.

There should be an extraction from each strain of what is best, forging it into a great heritage. So there should, but I'm rather afraid a recital of the foregoing nature in Quebec would simply strengthen Quebecois ambition to be cock of the walk.

Does not my reader write that ground down by the Normans there was "little left of the Saxon heritage"?

Needed Knowledge Lacking

Democracy and Ignorance

By DAVID GAUTHIER, Assistant Professor of Philosophy, University of Toronto

A DEMOCRATIC political system requires an educated electorate. This is one of those truths which the early advocates of democracy stressed over and over again. Yet we have never taken it seriously.

But don't we have an educated electorate? After all, we insist that everyone shall attend school until he reaches the age of 16. We're not a nation of illiterates.

We are a nation of political, economic and historical illiterates. And it's education in these fields which we need.

At school I studied with interest the anatomy of the earthworm. But I have not had occasion to refer to the elaborate diagram I drew from that day to this. Nor, alas, have I had occasion to employ my knowledge of the fifth declension of Latin nouns. In the long run these studies have not added significantly to my education.

An educated man should understand his environment. And the social environment, the environment man himself has made, is of prime importance. Without such understanding we cannot hope to achieve our ends, as individuals, or as a people.

What do school children learn of our history? Safe uncontroversial accounts of explorers—romantic tales about fur traders and coureurs de bois. Some fine words about the Fathers of Confederation, and the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Confederation aroused deep divisions—especially in the Maritimes. Do our children understand these and their later consequences?

Do they learn about the backroom connections between railways and politics, with their modern legacy in the shape of the CNR? Have they studied the unrest in Canada after the First World War, culminating in the Winnipeg general strike? Or the great depression of the thirties, and the consequent rise of such strange creeds as Social Credit?

Have they seen Canada with French-Canadian eyes, and traced the pattern of religious, economic and social exploitation which until recently plagued Quebec?

And if they have not understood these things, how can they understand Canada's problems today? Only by examining the historical bases of the issues which now divide us can we hope to achieve an intelligent resolution of our differences.

But history is not enough. We must understand how our society operates, if we are to make intelligent decisions as citizens.

We must learn about the working of our political system, the nature of parliamentary government, and the nature of federal government. And we need to educate our children, not in the wonderful theory, but in the actual practice—so that they learn about mundane and controversial things like political parties.

Although I am ostensibly educated, I have never taken, nor for that matter been offered, a course in economics in all my years at school and university. How then can I be expected to know whether Mr. Gordon talks sense or nonsense when he predicts his budgetary remedies for our ills?

Of course, a study of elementary economics will not transform us into economic experts. We may remain puzzled about what, if anything, should or could be done about American ownership of Canadian industry. But we shall at least be able to distinguish silly arguments from possibly sound ones.

The man who understands the history of his country, and the workings of its political and economic systems, is able to choose intelligently among political alternatives. The more such men there are, the more our political leaders will have to replace rhetoric with argument in making their appeals to us. And the more they will have to use intelligence in governing us.

Intelligent government may not be a good government. I have no illusions about the infallibility of an intellectual elite. My claim is modest—ignorance is one cause of error. And we are ignorant.

Rarity Among Asian Cities

Keystone of Malaysia

By EUTHYEN E. LIBBY
from Singapore

TODAY'S Singapore is beguiling. Only 85 miles from the equator, drenched with an average 95 inches of rainfall a year, crammed with nearly two million persons, one might expect this ancient Asian metropolis to be unbearably hot, chokingly humid and filled with squalor.

Instead, it unfolds before the visitor as a beautiful, clean, modern city full of tall buildings, excellent hotels and wide, tree-bordered streets where traffic flows without the noise, confusion and almost hopeless bottlenecks which are routine in Tokyo and Manila.

At this time of year the climate is really pleasant. It rains in the early morning and clears up generally before sunrise. Health conditions are excellent. Mosquitoes, vermin and other pests are effectively controlled. The water supply is adequate, uncontaminated and can be drunk straight from the tap. Epidemics are rare.

The literacy rate is between 95 and 99 per cent. The people of Singapore enjoy the highest standard of living in Asia—the per capita income exceeds even that of Japan.

The present government is basically Socialist and strongly anti-Communist. Many social and recreational activities are subsidized. Low-cost housing is provided with government assistance at the rate of one new flat every 15 minutes.

Public schools are free to pupils for the first six years, and are now running at two shifts a day, from 7 to 12 a.m. and from 1 to 6 p.m. Medical facilities and medical treatment are superior, and are available to everybody. Public hospitals and dispensaries offer free service to the poor.

What makes Singapore rare among Asian cities is the almost complete absence of corruption in its government. Since 74 per cent of the population is Chinese, it is to be expected that Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew and most of the other ministers are Chinese, although the ministers for culture and home affairs are Malay.

Ranking fifth among the seaports of the world, and the site of the headquarters of the British defence bases in this part of the world, Singapore is the keystone militarily, economically and sociologically of the Federation of Malaysia.

This federation is a new political union of 14 states, of which 11 were the former Federated Malay States. With a total population of about 10,000,000, it occupies two distinct regions, the Malay peninsula extending southwest from the narrow Kra Isthmus to the island of Singapore, and the north coast of island of Borneo. The two parts are separated by 400 miles of the South China Sea. It has a common border with Thailand and the Republic of Indonesia on the island of Borneo.

Singapore is the focal point of the region. It is on the shortest sea route between India and China, straddles the main sea and air routes to Australia, to the United States, and so is the centre of an area of great strategic importance. For these reasons, Britain selected it as the site of its major naval base in the Far East in 1821 on the termination of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance.

This base has since been supplemented by army and air installations at key points within the federation.

Singapore is the headquarters of the British Far East Command, whose commander-in-chief currently is Adm. Sir Varyl Begg, RN. The British forces here have the responsibility for assisting in the defence of the Federation of Malaysia on three counts—as a member of the British Commonwealth, under the terms of a bilateral defence treaty and as a member of ANZAM (Australia, New Zealand, Malaysia Alliance). Brunei, which elected not to join the federation, is still a British protectorate, as is the Far East Command is responsible for its defence also.

It is considered that publication in this column of general interest, and of about 200 words in length, will be accompanied by a personal note, and address.

The management of Butchart Gardens has shown good judgment in making satisfactory arrangements with the Victoria Symphony Society and the new conductor of the orchestra, Mr. Otto-Werner Mueller, for a series of concerts to be given through the summer months. This will bring great enjoyment to the many citizens throughout the Greater Victoria area, apart from the added tourist attraction, as many residents have relatives and friends who visit Victoria through the summer, and the Butchart Gardens are one of the foremost sites to be visited. Then again the Victoria Symphony Orchestra has grown in stature through the years and is now classed as one of the major symphony orchestras in Canada.

A recent announcement states that the Victoria Symphony Orchestra will be performing again this summer at Butchart Gardens after a lapse of several seasons for reasons never disclosed to the public.

Maple Leaf
The episode of six elderly women hauling down the maple leaf flag erected for a trial run by Victoria youths, prompts me to write.

These women called the youths traitors and an insult to the British Empire. What empire? The Imperial Conference of 1926 states that no longer an empire shall dominate at the centre by one imperial power of Great Britain, but a free association of equal nations a British Commonwealth of Nations.

Let us hope the youth of today shall keep abreast of the times throughout their adult life, and not become narrow and dogmatic as so many of us older folk are prone to become. I believe all Canadian citizens should be equally represented by their country's flag whether they be Indian, French, British or Chinese. The maple leaf flag embraces all of us.

Jarring Note

This is by nature a very lovely and but to some of us, and I feel sure to many of us, the growing number and size of advertising commercial signs is a very jarring note.

PC Candidate

Now that both Captain David Groos, the Liberal MP for Victoria, and Mr. Eric Charman, the Conservative standard-bearer in the last federal election here, have publicly espoused Mr. Pearson's meaningless flag, surely the time has come for local Conservatives to select a candidate who will stand for the retention of the Red Ensign as Canada's national flag in the coming election.

Hideous Menace

Pylons And Oaks

By CASSANDRA
from London

NOTHING seems to stop the gradual destruction of rural Britain.

The creeping tide of bricks and mortar plus the crawling caterpillar of millions of motor-cars emerging from the factories will soon make a quiet lane, in the south of England at any rate, a thing of the past.

Already over 6,000 unwanted old cars are dumped annually anywhere from places in suburban roads to the edges of forest glades.

The other menace of the hideous electric pylons has been with us for decades and nobody seems to be able to stop these horrible steel skeletons with their arms outstretched to the skies.

The answer given to those with the alternative solution, is that it costs too much to put the cables underground. It is a cry that is never heard about hundreds of millions spent annually on armaments that are obsolete even when they are in the planning stage—such as Blue Streak.

In West Sussex from Petworth to Burtton, one of the most beautiful parts of the South Downs which I knew so well in the unspoiled days of the early 30s, the Central Electricity Board is now proposing to erect the biggest power line in Europe over a 15-mile stretch of an area designated by the Ministry of Housing and Local Government as of "Outstanding Natural Beauty."

The great gaunt pylons will be of almost record size—160 feet high (twice the usual proportions) and only ten feet lower than Nelson's Column.

Thus you have one government department contradicting another department-sponsored board.

More than that, you have Sir Christopher Hinton, who is chairman of the Electricity Board, heartily agreeing with those who seek to protect the rural areas from such vandalism as say—well, electric pylons owned by the Electricity Board.

This is what he has to say to the Royal Society of Arts: "The industrial revolution and the growth and spread of the great conurbations have robbed a large proportion of the population of contact with unspoiled nature."

"Deep down in their minds I believe that most men feel this loss; the only compensation of the town-dweller lies in escape at weekend or holidays into the countryside."

Where the townswoman can pick a way more primeval as she likes under the almost non-existent shade of grotesque electric pylons taller by far than the greatest oaks and elms.

And, come to think of it, have a nice picnic leaning up against the filthy bulk of a car abandoned by a river's edge.

ONE of the few luxuries I permit myself is to dislike people who wear dark glasses. I am grudgingly prepared to exempt people from this stricture who have something wrong with their eyes.

There is a very slight case for those who object to very strong sunlight—but not much.

The villains, as far as I am concerned, are men and women who wear dark glasses when it is overcast, raining, or even at night.

They are like spies peering at you from the middle of furze bushes. You cannot see the expression in their eyes. I wonder they don't go the whole hog and wear masks.

Yesterday I saw a new variant on the see-but-not-be-seen technique of these cautious peeping Toms.

I was nearly run down in Leicester Square by a Rolls-Royce which appeared to be about the size of an ocean-going tug. The owner was crouched up in the back and, as a further precaution to preserve his furtive anonymity, all the rear windows were darkly tinted.

People who own Rolls-Royces should be seen.

They should not be ashamed of The Best Car in the World. The final offence is, of course, to use a Rolls with one-way glass rear windows while lying on the floor in the back wearing dark spectacles.

THERE is some pretty strange legal junk connected with the Scrap Metal Dealers Bill.

Lord Mancroft uncovered a real Steptoe item when he revealed that, as the law stands, it is a criminal offence to sell a second-hand anchor to anyone under 16 before 9 a.m.

The penalty is £20. If, however, you do it from premises over which your name is not written in letters six inches long, the penalty is £10 more.

Now it so happens that I haven't got a second-hand anchor that I want to sell to a person under 16 before 9 a.m., and, for the moment, my premises do not bear my name in letters six inches long.

But I'm grateful for the tip. Indeed I am and thank you, Lord Mancroft.

You can't be too careful these days.

Vatican Bans The Pill

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI announced Tuesday a new Roman Catholic study of birth control developments, presumably meaning contraceptive pills. But he barred immediate changes in church rules.

In a major speech a year and two days after he became Roman Catholic ruler, he made his first pronouncement in a growing debate among some Roman Catholics about the use of new birth control methods.

BROAD STUDY
The 64-year-old pontiff said the birth control question is "under study, as broadly and profoundly as possible" in the light of "both theoretic and practical developments."

He said the study is being made "with the collaboration of many illustrious experts" and that he hopes to be able to make the conclusions public soon.

NOT ENOUGH REASONS
"But let us say frankly that we have not yet sufficient reasons to consider overruling, and therefore not obligatory, the rules given by Pope Pius XII in this connection," Pope Paul said. "They must be considered valid, at least for so long as we do not feel in conscience obliged to modify them."

Direct Distance Dialing Likely to Be Confusing

Some people here are going to be mighty confused, B.C. Telephone officials believe, when direct distance dialing comes to Victoria—probably in May, 1966.

The new system of direct long-distance calling is already in use in Vancouver and Nanaimo but has not been installed here because of technical engineering problems which have to be overcome.

Victoria residents, however, seem to be having a hard time adjusting to the new number system which is gradually replacing the old Granite and Evergreen prefixes.

While the telephone company is busy replacing GR and EV with 47 and 38 prefixes, some of the old-timers here are "still dialing the Garden and Beacon prefixes which were in use here about 12 years ago," district manager Alan Higinbotham said yesterday.

"We are trying not to confuse them too much and we will probably issue a definite statement on direct distance dialing for Victoria within the next couple of months," he said.

When the new service does come about, a customer here who wants to call someone in San Francisco, for example, will have to dial 112 to gain access to the machine, then dial San Francisco's 415 area code and, finally, dial the seven-digit number of the person he wants.

It will necessitate dialing a total of 13 digits for out-of-province calls, and "if they mis-dial on DDD they could end up anywhere," said Mr. Higinbotham.

The telephone company also announced yesterday that the new Victoria telephone directory will be distributed Dec. 5 and that pay stations removed from the Malahat last March because of vandalism will be installed again.

Symphony Deficit $13,343

The Victoria Symphony Society had a deficit of $13,343 in the past year, it was disclosed Monday at the society's annual meeting.

But it is expected the deficit will be made up, as is traditional, by the society's guarantors at the end of the year.

$50,000 INCOME
The society received grants of $14,575 and donations of $18,195.

New members elected to the society's board of directors were Don Smith, Leslie McMaster, Mrs. Kay Christie, J. Brathwaite, C. Conrad, Jack Edmison, Cmdr. J. Andrew and Dr. C. L. Lamberton. In addition, several persons were re-elected to the board and several others are only half-way through a two-year term.

A city towboat operator yesterday denied an earlier report that a new Vancouver Tug scow had struck a rock at Sooke Harbor.

Capt. Gordon Aske, of Rivtow Marine Ltd., said his firm used an extra tug to make certain the new scow would not strike the rock, which has been a hazard to shipping and soon will be blasted out of the water.

SAID 'TYPICAL'
Gordon Elworthy, of Island Tug & Barge Ltd., was quoted in a story about the awarding of a $58,750 contract to Vancouver Pile Driving Ltd., as saying: "A new Vancouver Tug scow struck the rocks, and although it was not seriously damaged, it is typical of what the rocks do."

"The scow did not hit the rock," Capt. Aske said yesterday.

Some gins have rather strong flavouring. Others are utterly tasteless. Gilbey's London Dry has a perfect balance for the novel gin and bitter lemon. A dry flavour that has been the international favourite since 1873. Quite a long time.

Sleep Conquers Mrs. Cavis-Brown

Judge, Ball Both Out

WIMBLEDON (AP)—Drowsy afternoon... comfortable chair... eyes closing... head nods... Clark Graebner of Cleveland stretched at a volley from Abe Segal of South Africa, hit it out of the court and ran to congratulate the winner. But no voice called "out." Mrs. Dorothy Cavis-Brown, the line judge on No. 3 court at the Wimbledon Tennis Championships, was peacefully asleep. The crowd roared. Still no response from Mrs. Cavis-Brown. A ball boy walked over to give her a gentle nudge. Mrs. Cavis-Brown started back to life. "Did I miss anything?" she asked. Davis Cup Star Segal, 6-2, 7-5, 6-2 winner, said the ball was so obviously out that he and Graebner were shaking hands before they realized they'd heard no line call. Mike Gibson, chief Wimbledon umpire, had a word with Mrs. Cavis-Brown in his office, then gave her two days to rest up.

The Still

Gridders Eye Chamberlain

By BOB GREEN

NEW YORK (AP)—Let's say you're a defensive halfback. So how do you defend against a pass receiver who is seven feet, one inch, weighs 230 pounds and can outrun you?

"I think it's a very interesting problem," said Hank Stram, coach of the American Football League's Kansas City Chiefs. And that's why he wants to sign Wilt Chamberlain.

"I'm certain he would be the greatest flanker back in football," Stram said after Chamberlain took part in a recent workout at Monticello, N.Y., an up-state resort area. And Stram has some plans on doing something about it.

"Wilt and I had quite a talk," Stram said. "He's interested in football, genuinely interested."

"Now I want to talk to some officials of San Francisco Warriors and see what we can work out about Wilt playing football with the Chiefs."

San Francisco officials, however, are expected to be less than completely enthusiastic. Big Wilt makes in excess of $50,000 a year playing pro basketball and the idea of such property being double-teamed by pro football linemen wouldn't induce sweet dreams.

Chamberlain, the most prolific scorer ever in pro basketball, was a recent guest at a basketball clinic and there met and talked with Stram.

"He was interested in football, so we went out and had a little workout," Stram said. "He took off his shoes and shirt and was just wearing his slacks, silk pants.

"I started throwing him some passes, to his left, to his right, over his left, to his right, over his head, over the goalposts. He caught everything I threw. And then I clocked him on the 40-yard dash. He ran 4.6 barefooted. Alvin Hayes, the Chiefs' scabbard and one of the fastest men in the AFL, runs it in 4.7."

"There's no question about it. He could be great if he decides to play football. With his size, his speed, his range, there isn't a defensive back in the world who could even come close to containing him."

"You could put him out on a corner and he and our quarterback could just play catch."

Stram said. "He's interested in football, genuinely interested."

Rain Hits Wimbledon Play But Leading Women Win

LONDON (CP)—Wimbledon tennis tournaments top two women players cleared their first-round hurdles with ease Tuesday before rain halted play and forced officials to cancel the remaining matches.

By the end of the day there was a backlog of 56 matches. Only 50 minutes of play had been possible.

BOTH WIN
But during that time, Margaret Smith of Australia, the defending champion and Maria Bueno of Brazil, her No. 1 challenger, had earned places in the second round of the 78th annual championship.

Miss Smith crushed Annette Van Zyl of South Africa 6-2, 6-1 and Miss Bueno defeated Carol Prosen of the United States 6-0, 6-3.

LONG WAIT
Earlier in the day rain delayed the matches for 3½ hours and officials wavered in indecision waiting for the rain to stop.

When it did they announced that play would continue and then 20 minutes later did an about face and announced: "No play on the outside courts. We'll play just on the centre and No. 1 courts."

Only a few men's singles matches were played and were first-round matches held over from Monday when fading light halted play.

BEHAVIOR WINS
In one of the games, Mike Belkin, an 18-year-old native of Montreal who now plays out of Miami, Fla., defeated Belgium's Claude de Groenckel 6-2, 3-6, 8-6, 7-5.

The third seeded woman, 21-year-old Billie Jean Moffitt of the United States, was forced to sit it out as tarps were pulled over the wet courts. She was scheduled to meet Roberta Beltrame of Italy.

CHRISTINE OUT
British tennis muckrakers received a blow when Christine Truman, a Wimbledon crowd-pleaser, was scratched a half hour before play began.

Miss Truman, runner-up for the title in 1961, had not sufficiently recovered from an elbow injury she received two weeks ago.

Karen Susman of the United States, the 1962 Wimbledon champion, had her match with Russia's Anna Dmitrieva curtailed when dusk fell. The attractive Russian girl took the first set 6-4 and was leading 2-1 when play was halted.

In other matches Tory Ann Freix of the United States defeated Helga Schabus of West Germany 6-2, 6-4; Mary Ann Eisel of the United States defeated Heather Chapple of Britain 7-5, 6-1; and Vera Sukova of Czechoslovakia was beaten by Deirdre Catt, British Wightman Cup player 6-4, 6-2.

Canada Tries Tennis Trials

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Canadian Lawn Tennis Association has scheduled two sets of trials for Canada's young tennis players striving to reach Davis Cup competition.

The association, governing body of Canadian tennis, has scheduled the trials in the East and West—to choose two more players to complete Canada's four-man Davis Cup team.

WEST TRIALS
A total of five British Columbia players and one from Alberta will battle in the western trials at the Jericho Club clay courts here June 24-26.

The top three will face three eastern winners in July at Montreal to select the two who will join Keith Carpenter of Montreal and Francois Godbout of Waterloo, Que.

IN MONTREAL
The North American zone first-round match against Australia is in Montreal July 17-19.

The six members of Canada's junior cup squad—four from B.C.—will participate in the trials.

OLDER PLAYERS
They must field the strongest Davis Cup team possible; no older players must be considered.

Western competitors are Reid Getz, 24, Bob Bardsley, 17, Bob Moffatt, 18, and Bob Pudicombe, 17, all of Vancouver; Don McCormick, 19, of Victoria, and Cam Dalgleish, 21, of Edmonton.

All are members of the junior squad—which has a 23-and-under age limit—except Getz, who crashed into the picture with impressive victories in the first two tournaments of the Vancouver season.

He beat Bardsley in each semi-final and Moffatt in the finals without dropping a set.

Everybody Bets On Santa Claus

LONDON (AP)—Santa Claus, the hot favorite to win Saturday's Irish Derby at the Curragh Track, was made a 4-to-5 betting choice Tuesday at a call-over by London bookmakers.

Meanwhile, Two American-owned horses were withdrawn. They were Transpose and Baldrick II, winner of the one-mile Two Thousand Guineas.

Baldrick II ran poorly in the 1½-mile Epsom Derby, won by Santa Claus, and it was decided he would have little chance in the Irish classic, over the same distance. The other owners of colts still officially entered were reported ready to throw in the sponge and it seemed likely the starting field would number around 15.

Odds quoted at the call-over included 8-to-1 against Dilettante II, 10-to-1 Lionhearted, 16-to-1 Anselmo and King Paddy; 18-to-1 Neptune; 20-to-1 Crete; 33-to-1 All Saved; 40-to-1 Devastation; and 66-to-1 Master Buck and Red Vagabond.

Love, now showing at the Odeon.

Then, just when things appear blackest, we learn this is some kind of graduation exercises at a school for killers run by the mysterious criminal organization SPECTRE.

The incident, together with the fascinating gyrations of a belly-dancer behind the tiles and opening credits, set the mood of this fast-paced action movie.

The plot gets a bit murky in places, but everything and everyone looks so good it doesn't seem to matter.

There's a lovely Russian spy (Daniela Bianchi) who thinks she's making love to Bond for SMERSH (a Russian secret service agency) when she's actually the unwitting tool of SPECTRE.

But, what the heck, she falls prey to Sean Connery's fatal charm and enjoys it anyway.

Then there's a female Russian colonel with a poisoned blade in the toe of her sensible army issue shoes. She has an eye for a well-turned female ankle.

SUFFICIENT MAYHEM
And two or three murders on one of those romantic Balkan express trains, a helicopter exploding in the area, and three fast speedboats consumed by flames, and Istanbul in wide-screen color.

It's all good clean fun. I got the impression that the people who made this movie were making a comedy.

HIGH LIGHT
The extreme height of auroras has been measured at 620 miles, while the lowest may descend to 5 miles.

Conversation with Eisenhower—the intimate story of the great invasion of Europe
in June, 1944

MR. CRONKITE: General, I understand that the British came ashore without much opposition.

GEN. EISENHOWER: They had opposition in spots. Put it this way—the resistance wasn't like Omaha Beach but a great deal more like Utah Beach.

The British and Canadians fought well. They were very fine soldiers. Bobo Dempsey (General Sir Miles C.) commanded the Second British Army. Later in the invasion, late in July (General Sir Henry D. G.) Crerar came in and commanded the First Canadian Army. Both were the army commanders in Montgomery's army group.

They were supposed to push in and get to Caen on D plus 1, I believe.

They were supposed to get Caen on D Day. You see, just south of Caen toward Falaise, there is some very fine ground. We wanted to develop our airfields just as rapidly as we could on the continent, and that terrain just south of Caen was perfect for airfield construction and for tank maneuver.

Couldn't Move

Well, we ran into stubborn resistance in front of Caen because the Germans promptly saw that they had to keep Caen—it controls a good many roads leading into the interior of France. They reinforced their defences at Caen rapidly, and for one solid month they kept us out. We couldn't move.

Were you at the time critical of General Montgomery? Or his forces?

I wasn't. Some of you newspaper fellows were. When we saw what was happening, we had Montgomery (commanding the British troops) keep up his pressure to hold as much of the German strength as he could. Because we realized, finally, that the Americans were going to have to make the real breakthrough from the beachhead. So if Montgomery kept a great many German troops occupied at Caen, he would make it easier for the Americans to move on their side of the beachhead.

Naval Aid

The navy stood here for a full month and rendered support on the British side. The front lines were not too far away, and they could do it. It was just superb. Every soldier that I know was always delighted to have the naval gunfire support.

The fact that we didn't get that ground south of Caen leading toward Falaise, that terrain perfect for airfields and for deploying armor, that hurt us some. But it wasn't fatal, as we proved.

Mr. one of the biggest problems correspondents had in Normandy was trying to explain how a hedgerow could stop a 25-ton tank. People look at home thought of a hedge as the kind they have.

Walter, these hedges in Normandy aren't anything like American hedges. A hedgerow is really a bank of earth, frequently four or five feet thick and often four feet tall, with a tremendous hedge growing right out of that wall.

Helpless

Tanks could go through the hedge all right, but when they did, they belled up over the wall. All the tank guns would be pointing straight up into the sky, and the enemy's anti-tank guns could go right through that soft underside of the tank and put it out of action.

Our problem was how to get tanks through the hedgerows with their guns blazing but not shooting toward the sky. This problem bothered us for several weeks, and finally a sergeant in Ordnance—his name was (Curtis G.) Culin—had an idea. It was very simple, and he took it to his captain, and the idea very quickly got to the top echelons—which proves that army brass does not always act like Colonel Blimp.

Sharp Snout

Specifically, the idea got to General Bradley. He took a look at Culin's homemade model, and he was ecstatic. All it was was a sharp snout that could be welded on a tank, and then cut off the bank as the tank went into it.

This kept the tank square and level. And when it went through a hedgerow with guns blazing, why it had quite an effect on the next hedgerow, which was usually in enemy hands and only 50 yards away.

We found the steel to make these snouts on the beaches, in the beach obstacles the Germans had built. We put them on our tanks just before our breakthrough on July 25, and in each assault tank battalion, two of every three tanks had them.

Saved Lives

Sergeant Culin later lost a leg in the war and was invalided home, but I've seen him since that time. His idea really saved many hundreds of lives.

Why didn't our intelligence tell us about this hedgerow problem so we could prepare in advance for it? Why wasn't this gadget or something similar devised during the months of planning?

We knew about the problem, but no one had come up with a particular idea to beat it. Because no one had every really tried to attack through the hedgerows with tanks. In the American army, you've got imagination everywhere, and a man who saw the trouble came up with a solution.

But also, we hadn't expected to make a blitz down here through the hedgerow country. We expected the British Army to be on the open ground south of Caen and around Falaise. This would have made it easier for us to get down to St. Lo and beyond. Instead, because of the tremendous defence the Germans put up around Caen, we had to blitz our way through the hedgerows.

More Than Met Eye

Sharp Thinking of Sergeant Halted Hedgerows' Heavy Toll

That tank gadget helped us break out from St. Lo and we started our great wheeling campaign to surround the Seventh German Army at Argentan and Falaise.

And this led to trapping the Germans in the Argentan-Falaise gap?

We thought of that as we were breaking out from St. Lo. As we swung around, we saw we could encircle the German Seventh Army. When they counterattacked us (at Mortain on Aug. 7), they gave us our big opportunity.

Seeing In

Bradley thought of the idea first—let's swing in closer, he said, and capture these fellows right here so we won't have to fight them along the Seine River.

I said, "Go right ahead—that's fine. If you get cut off by the Germans, we'll supply you by air." We had enough cargo planes to give Bradley 2,000 tons of supplies a day by air alone.

"We'll do it," I told him, "so don't worry."

At that time Montgomery was in charge of co-ordinating the armies on the continent. So I told Bradley—I said "Just tell Montgomery what you're going to do." And Montgomery agreed with the idea right away.

So Bradley went after the Germans and did a magnificent job. Bradley was very imaginative and at the same time very sturdy.

Did the Falaise gap really look like the end of the Normandy campaign?

That's right. You know, the soldiers began to speak of it as the "great killing ground." We closed our armies one on the other, the British on the north and the Americans on the south.

While the Germans were trying to get out of the pocket, we brought all our air, artillery, and other weapons on them.

I saw the ground several days later, and in acre after acre there was nothing but the dead. The scene was even more terrible because the Germans were using much horse-drawn artillery, and whole teams of horses that had been killed by a single shellburst were just lying there with the guns.

Honestly, you could have walked a quarter of a mile without ever stepping on the ground. It was a horrible scene, and it was the end of the Normandy campaign.

From there, we moved quickly across France to the German frontier and the Siegfried Line.

Next: Gen. Eisenhower looking back over the shadows of time and death, gives a moving explanation of what he feels is the real meaning of D-Day.

Car Trip Ends Behind Bars For City Man

A man who took his wife's car without her permission and drove while under suspension was sentenced yesterday to four-and-a-half months in jail by Magistrate William Ostler.

William Rohrer, 901 Selkirk, denied two charges of taking the car without the owner's permission and pleaded guilty to driving while under suspension.

One the charge of taking the car was withdrawn by the informant, Mrs. Rohrer.

Mrs. Rohrer said that her estranged husband took the car from her home about midnight, June 18.

Rohrer denied they were living apart and said they used both his home in Esquimalt and her apartment in the city. He said he always had access to the car and did not need permission to drive it.

The car was bought by and registered in the name of Mrs. Rohrer.

Sentence Rohrer to one month for taking the car—5 days for the first driving offence and two months for the second—Magistrate Ostler said Rohrer's previous record of traffic offences showed the "grossest contempt" and that he was "defiant and completely unrepentant."

A year's probation, one day in jail and two fines of $100 each were imposed by Magistrate Ostler on Quon Chung Hung on four charges of conspiring to help illegal immigrants into Canada.

He was involved with Peter Chong who is now serving five years for the conspiracy.

Magistrate Ostler, referring to the fact that Quon was an illegal immigrant, said that the accused could scarcely refuse to co-operate in the conspiracy. He said there was no suggestion by the Crown that he had profited from the scheme or the situation would be entirely different.

Quon was bound over to keep the peace for one year on a $500 bond but was allowed to return to Manitoba where he has a job waiting.

Surjit Singh, 884 Colville, was remanded for sentence yesterday after admitting to false pretences charges involving seven worthless cheques.

Cheques presented by the accused for goods and services were for $18, $13, $15, $5, $40, $16.50 and $12.70.

Of the $120.20 involved the accused has made restitution of $42.50.

He said he did not present the cheques for personal gain but to feed his wife and three children.

Accepting a challenge to a drag race cost a youth $50 yesterday.

Ronald W. Vincent, 3575 Savannah, was dared to drag race on Douglas one afternoon at 2:30 and hit speeds of between 50 and 55 miles an hour.

He was fined $50 for speeding.

Keeping liquor for sale at his house at 338 Niagara cost Gerald Bruce $350 in fines yesterday.

Police said a search of the house had disclosed a bar in the living room and only two chesterfields and two chesterfield chairs as furniture.

Police saw 11 people drinking and found three bottles of rum and two of rye; a half bottle each of rum and rye, a bottle of cherry brandy, and partly full bottles of rum, rye, gin, vodka and Scotch.

Pictures produced showed the bar, in the words of Magistrate Ostler to be "decorated to look like a section of a night club."

David Howe, 19, of 834 Bardsley, was fined $30 for being a minor in possession of liquor.

Mayor's French Pays Off

A group of Quebec mayors impressed by the understanding shown to them some time ago by Mayor Wilson, will hold a meeting here this fall.

The Quebec Union of Municipalities announced Sunday a campaign of "mutual understanding between the country's two ethnic groups" will begin with a study session by Quebec mayors here this fall.

FRENCH GREETING

It started when Mayor Wilson greeted Quebec representatives in French when they visited Victoria after the last convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities in Regina.

As a gesture of appreciation to Mayor Wilson, the union's directors decided to make the first of the group's outside-the-province study sessions in British Columbia.

Services Board

West Areas Seeking Boundaries

Local advice is being sought on the establishment of boundaries for three zones in Colwood-Langford-Metchosin, each of which will elect one representative-at-large to take part in forthcoming talks on a joint services board for the Capital Region.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said the request went out yesterday to the advisory board for Community Planning Area No. 4 which covers all of the area in question and is westernmost of all districts concerned.

SOON AS POSSIBLE

The minister said he asked for the recommendations of the advisory body to be communicated to the government as soon as possible.

Similar questions of zones don't apply in other unorganized territories within the region because in the case of View Royal and North Saanich the community planning areas cover a single community.

Mr. Campbell said he wants it to be clearly understood that "any suggestion the conference held last Saturday was a move designed to force incorporation on these special areas" is totally without justification.

RESIDENTS' CHOICE

"This conference and the proposal for a joint services board placed before it are just what they appeared to be, not only on the surface but beneath the surface as well," the minister said. "The decision on whether the

Faces Heart Operation

Co-operation Gives Baby Fast Trip to Vancouver

A three-month-old Victoria boy born with a hole in his heart was transferred by highway and ferry from Royal Jubilee Hospital to the Vancouver General Hospital in two hours and 40 minutes yesterday morning.

Baby Darryl Praud, of 751 Rockheights will be operated on at the Children's Health Centre of the mainland hospital.

WELL ORGANIZED

"I never saw anything so well organized," the baby's father Constant Praud said last night. Hospital authorities arranged for special handling on the B.C. government's 9 a.m. ferry.

"My son Dennis phoned the Saanich police and asked if we could have an escort," Mr. Praud said.

"They said they'd be more than happy to arrange it for us. They told me to blink my lights when I got to the Saanich police station."

TOOK OVER

"I blinked my lights three times and the Saanich police car took off ahead of us. When we got to Saanich another police car took over and escorted us to the ferry."

The Praud party consisted of Mr. Praud and his son Dennis, nurse Lynne Scotten of Royal Jubilee Hospital and baby Darryl. They travelled in a station wagon equipped with oxygen and equipment for feeding the baby by tube en route.

QUICK TAKE-OFF

The ferry left as soon as the party arrived, Mr. Praud said. "It was the Queen of Victoria," he said, "and they couldn't have been nicer to us."

"The captain came down to see if we were all right. The steward brought us extension lights to put in the car and highway authority patrol made arrangements for an escort on the other side."

CLEARED PASS

The ferry from Tsawwassen was held back to enable the Queen of Victoria to pass unimpeded through Active Pass.

"We got in about 15 minutes ahead of schedule," Mr. Praud said.

Highway patrol and Vancouver police escorted the party from Tsawwassen to the Vancouver hospital in 12 minutes without one stop, he said.

Baby Darryl is now in an oxygen tent.

STRENUOUS TRIP

"It was quite a strenuous trip for him," his father said. "The doctor in Vancouver said he would wait a couple of days before performing the operation."

The Prauds, in addition to the baby, have five other children ranging in age from eight to 24. They also have two grandchildren. They came to Victoria from Whitewood, Sask., in 1953. Mr. Praud is a construction worker.

Visiting Dog At SPCA

A visiting dog from Washington State became separated from its owner yesterday and was found near the home of Mrs. A. L. Orr-Ewing at 2320 Exeter. The black and white pup, wearing a collar and a tag marked S. Dugy, Bellevue, Wash., is awaiting developments at the SPCA.

Five Hours

Art Case Accused Acquitted

An assize court jury yesterday returned a verdict of not guilty in the trial of James Harker, of Vancouver, who had been charged with theft of a picture and frame.

The jury deliberated for nearly five hours before returning its verdict at 9:40 p.m.

THREE-DAY TRIAL

The trial lasted three days and involved a painting entitled The River Stour, by Thomas Gainsborough, 1821, which its owner, Mrs. Isabella Mowat, 665 Niagara, believed to be a genuine John Constable.

Director of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, Colin Graham testified in court that the picture might bring as much as $500 at a public auction because of the feeling of the public that it might be genuine.

FOR ONLY $35

On the other hand, Mr. Graham admitted to defence counsel John Gatehouse, it might sell for as little as $35 in a store.

The expert witness, incidentally, will be back in Assize Court today as a member of the jury panel. He was excused from jury duty in the case just concluded.

Vacation Begins Thursday

Nearly 33,000 children from Greater Victoria schools will leave their books behind Thursday to start on a 10-week summer holiday—the longest such vacation in many years.

Greater Victoria district has 26,250 students in schools at present; Sooke has 3,000, and Saanich 3,600.

Today and Thursday many schools are holding awards days prior to ending the school year. In Sooke, Edward Milne School holds its graduation ceremonies Thursday, and in Saanich, Claremont plans closing exercises, recognition ceremonies and awards presentation today.

Sidney elementary will have its awards day today, and Mt. Newton Thursday.

Today six schools in the Greater Victoria school district will hold awards day, Monterey, Quadra primary in the morning, with North Ward, Gordon Head, Lampson and S. J. Willis in the afternoon.

Thursday morning, awards ceremonies will be held at Doncaster and Central junior high, and in the afternoon Quadra elementary, James Bay, Oak Bay junior high and Mount Douglas high.

Pilot Tidal Study Thursday

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Reporter

A unique method of charting tidal flow off Cordova Bay will be tried Thursday to determine whether sewerage outfalls can be located there.

The provincial pollution control board is co-ordinating the pilot project, which will involve four other federal and provincial agencies deployed on land, sea and in the air.

If the experiment is successful it is planned to carry out similar studies from Sidney to Albert Head.

Trace Method

The study will use the trace method of determining tidal flow, which has been used before, but with a unique twist.

Instead of using the normal floats, long fingers of floating paper will be stretched out from shore to distances of between two and four miles.

The specially prepared three-foot-wide strips, colored white so they can be seen and photographed from the air, will be laid for a length of 40 feet at 200-foot intervals along a plotted bearing.

Five lines in all will be laid, between Cowichan Head and Gordon Head.

B.C., Federal Agencies Unite to Trace Sewage

Aircraft of the provincial air surveys branch will fly over the test area at half-hourly intervals from dawn to dusk Thursday, taking photographs to be used in plotting the tidal flow.

When airborne observers report the lines have been blotted out then more paper will be laid along the original bearings and the whole operation repeated.

Naval auxiliary craft attached to the Pacific Naval Laboratory, Esquimalt, and vessels of the Canadian Hydrographic Service and the Fisheries Research Board of Canada will also take part.

Study Later

These agencies will provide the technical experts to interpret the findings of the survey.

A land-based survey crew will set up its instruments on top of Mt. Douglas to make further observations.

Charles Keenan, director of public health engineering for the B.C. government, is co-ordinator of the project.

He touched upon plans for the survey in a speech to the conference of municipal officials sponsored by the department of municipal affairs in Holyrood House last weekend.

Must Be Clear

The operation requires good visibility for air photography but a slight overcast would help cut glare from the water.

Mr. Keenan said Thursday was picked for the experiment because on that day there will be a full ebb and flow of tides during daylight hours.

If the night is clear there will be a moon, as well, and experimental sightings may be carried out after dusk if conditions warrant it. Light equipped buoys will be used in any night operations.

The paper strips to be used in the study will float for about 12 hours and sink or disintegrate in about 24 hours.

Initial tests showed paper provided much more contrast for recording on film than other trace materials such as sawdust, aluminum dust, and dyes.

Lack of information of tidal flow makes it impossible to tell how far sewer outfalls should be extended from shore in order to ensure that nearby beaches are free from pollution.

There is a band of water, of varying widths, that moves sluggishly offshore. This band is narrowest, sometimes less than 100 feet off points of land and in narrow swift-running channels, but in bays it becomes a mile or more in width.

Watch Eddies

It is in bays, too, that back eddies are found, moving in the opposite direction to the main tidal flow.

As a rule of thumb, therefore, sewer outfalls are usually placed on points such as Clover Point or Macdonald Point. But beach pollution occurs when the outfall ends in a stream that feeds a back eddy.

A Saanich application to discharge sewage from an outfall in Cordova Bay sometime ago was turned down by the pollution control board.

Door-to-Door

Judge Raps System

House-repair firms which actively canvass from door to door for business came under heavy criticism at assize court yesterday from Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton.

The judge's criticism was directed mainly against house-repair firms which seek business at people's homes.

Leonard James Harker, Vancouver, on trial on a charge of stealing a painting from a Victoria home, was engaged in such work here last November and December. (See "Art Case Accused Acquitted," on this page).

WHY TOLERATE

"One wonders sometimes, I am sure, why householders should have to tolerate folk who endeavor to thrust themselves and their business upon them without invitation," said the judge in an aside to his charge to the jury.

Testimony in court had disclosed that after Harker's secretary had phoned Mrs. Isabella Mowat, 665 Niagara, concerning repair work, Harker arrived at Mrs. Mowat's residence in an attempt to persuade her to have him do some work on her house.

"CAME UPON HER" "She was not looking for anyone to come," continued the judge. They came upon her. They elected to come and invade her house, you might say, and tell her what she ought to do.

"Well, that may be modern business. My own feeling is that folks should still have the right to say when they want business done, and by whom."

Smith's Hill

Garden Plan Gaining

The Spencer property on top of rocky Smith's Hill, with its extensive and highly-rated alpine garden and granite manor, moved one step closer yesterday to becoming a commercial garden spot, a little Butchart Gardens within the city.

A special informal council meeting with the advisory planning commission will recommend that the Spencer property be rezoned from its present residential status to enable Spencer Castle and Rock Gardens Limited to open the property to the public as a botanical garden and historical site.

SAMPLE LEASE

One of the principals of the company which will open the two-and-a-half-acre property to the public is ex-alderman Robert Macmillan.

Yesterday's meeting in city hall also instructed the city solicitor to prepare a sample lease which would give the company the use of approximately 3.26 acres of city-owned land adjacent to the Spencer property, some of which will probably be used as a parking lot.

Whether to sell or lease the city-owned land was the paramount question at yesterday's meeting.

REPURCHASE OPTION One adviser suggested that the land might sell at a price of approximately $30,000 with a city option to repurchase the land in the future at the same price, plus carrying charges on the money in the interval.

Thus, it was pointed out, the city could gain on the deal if it was offered $100,000 an acre, as it well might be, for the land as site for a high rise apartment.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow did not think this would quite be "cricket" on the part of the city and might well leave the council of that day open to criticism of exploiting citizens for the city's own ends.

SOLUTION Matter was resolved when the proponents of the leasing plan won the day.

The lease the solicitor will draw up will be for a period of five years with an option of renewal.

These fundamental questions are among those to which the new public affairs group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce hopes to find answers.

Meeting yesterday for the first time, under the chairmanship of

Do We Need Bus System?

Does Victoria really need a transit system and if so, should it be made to stand on its own feet?

These fundamental questions are among those to which the new public affairs group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce hopes to find answers.

Meeting yesterday for the first time, under the chairmanship of

E. R. Chamberlin, the committee agreed to ask the B.C. Hydro and Power authority for a copy of its submission to the Public Utility Commission in which it asks for bus fare increases equal to the highest in Canada.

The meeting, which was of an exploratory nature, discussed the whole question of transit and agreed that inasmuch as the subject was of vital interest to Vancouver and New Westminster, the committee secretary, L. J. Worrell, should find out what the two mainland cities expected to do in the matter and co-ordinate action here with these plans.

Committee members agreed the whole question could be broken down into two divisions: rates and adequacy, and general policy.

One member said he thought the matter of the government's basic policy was simple enough. It was, to force, or at least persuade, the municipalities to take over the transit system which was proving to be so much of a headache.

Committee members agreed the whole question could be

Church Founder Marks Anniversary

Special church service, big family dinner and an "at home" reception are among the celebrations being held to honor Rev. Edward F. Church and Mrs. Church, 2705 Tudor Avenue, on the occasion of their diamond wedding anniversary on Monday.

Sixty years ago, on June 29, 1904, the little Anderson village church, located near St. Mary's, Ont., was the setting for the marriage of Ellen May Beatrice Anderson and Edward Church, who was at that time an insurance underwriter.

Mrs. Church was born 84 years ago in the village of Anderson, named after her family, and her husband was born in Smith Falls, 82 years ago.

Rev. Church's entry into the ministry was the result of an oratorical contest in 1907. The speech he delivered so stirred the capacity crowd he was encouraged to undertake the long, arduous struggle to attain a university education in preparation for his commitment to the ministry of the Methodist Church of Canada.

From the beginning, his wife has been his staunchest supporter and a true partner.

Three children were born to the couple during Mr. Church's university years and, so to help out, the young father took on a preaching assignment in addition to his other activities.

Mr. Church was ordained in 1912 while still at college and preached in Queen Street Methodist Church, Toronto. He held this ministry until he was appointed chaplain to the soldiers in the First World War, serving for three years with the 1st Canadian Engineers.

After the war he served with distinction the pulpits of Fort Rouge Methodist Church, Winnipeg; Zion United Church, Moose Jaw, Sask.; Metropolitan United Church in Victoria from 1931 to 1937; Chown Memorial Church, Vancouver.

Due to the urgent need for ministers following his retirement he served interim pastorates in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, Ont.; Central Church, Stratford and in the Alberni United Church during the 1950's.

Two new churches were founded by Rev. Church during his long career. Some years ago he was requested by Ocean Park Church congregation to form a church near Whiterock, B.C., and through his efforts Crescent Park United Church was established.

In 1958, at the age of 76 years, Rev. Church founded the Cadboro Bay United Church here and the congregation has dedicated the church hall in honor of the founding minister. It bears the name of Edward Church Hall.

Throughout the years her husband was engaged in his chosen profession, Mrs. Church took an active part in church work with the women's groups. She also taught Sunday School for many years and she was made a life member of the Women's Missionary Society by the congregation of the Fort Rouge Methodist Church.

Sunday morning many friends and relatives will attend the special church service at Cadboro Bay United, to be conducted by Rev. Leighton Straight. During the service Rev. Church will baptize two of his great-grandchildren, Kelly Curtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Curtis, of Victoria, and Robert Fitzsimmons, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fitzsimmons, of Niagara Falls, Ont. The couple has 10 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Dr. E. J. M. (Jack) Church, Edmonton, Mrs. E. M. (Miriam) Taylor, Victoria, and Mrs. D. H.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I have been engaged to Burt for so many years I'm ashamed to tell you the number. We were supposed to get married three months ago. I had my dress bought and my hair fixed. Then his horse got sick. I am still single.

Burt spends every spare minute at the barn. He has broken dozens of dates with me because his horse didn't look right. He'd rather sit around with the vet and worry about the horse than be with me.

I like horses, but I like people better. I am beginning to think Burt is different. He eats, dreams and thinks horses. He even smells like a horse most of the time. Any advice for me? —DISGUSTED.

Dear Disgusted: It appears that you have been left at the post, Dearie. If you are running so poorly before marriage I'd say your chances for getting any attention whatever after marriage are about 100 to one—against.

As for Burt, I suggest he take a saliva test.

Dear Ann Landers: My girl friend and I are both 16. We have been dating two boys from another high school. They are buddies.

The second time we went out with Phil and Bill (made-up names) they discovered they had no money AFTER we had pulled into a gas station and ordered five gallons of gas. My girl friend and I gave them $1.50. We were supposed to get it back but nothing was ever said about it so we let it go.

The next week when we were in a pizza place the boys suddenly discovered they had 14c between them, so my girl friend and I paid for the treats.

Last night on the way to the bowling alley Bill and Phil asked if they could borrow $3 each until next week. We said O.K. and handed over the money. Since they had never paid back any of the other money we loaned them we really don't expect to see this money again either.

Please tell me if you think we are being too dollar-minded or are these boys taking advantage.

Yet the egg of nursery rhyme fame had nothing on the eggs at Golden Yolk Farms on Quadra Street as far as 20 youngsters from St. Christopher's School kindergarten class were concerned. The eggs they saw there were REAL and there were thousands of them... some 3,000 dozen are processed there each day.

The children, ranging in ages from four to six years, made a tour of the grading plant just before close of school for the season. They were accompanied by their teacher, Mrs. Barbara M. Williams and three mothers, Mrs. H. W. Gladwell, Mrs. Arthur Tooms, and Mrs. Gary Fletcher.

"And they enjoyed every minute of it, especially the boys. They were fascinated by the workings of the different machines," said Mrs. Williams. Mr. George Young, manager of the plant, and his staff of six women were kept busy answering questions such as "What's that?" "Why is it doing that?" "Won't they break?"... and so on.

The youngsters stared in wide-eyed wonderment as Mr. Young picked up about 30 eggs at once with a vacuum lift. "How come they didn't fall off?" asked one of the boys who was probably quite convinced all those eggs would come to the same fate as Humpty Dumpty.

He seemed satisfied when Mr. Young explained how the suction cups on the lift held the eggs quite securely.

The children watched with interest as Mr. Young picked up more eggs with the vacuum lift and loaded the conveyor belt which carried the eggs to a washing machine and from there to a drier. The eggs moved smoothly along the belt to a black curtained booth where the candler sat.

Each child was taken to the booth to watch the eggs being candled by means of the laden belt passing over two 500-watt mercury lights. The strong light shone up through the eggs showing the candler any imperfections such as dirt, cracks, rough shells or spots. They were sorted and sent on to the grading machine.

The greenish glow in the eggs as they passed over the mercury lights impressed one little girl who was sure she'd be "eating green eggs for breakfast."

Following the grading and sorting to size the eggs were then packed into individual cartons. "Just like mommy gets from the store," piped up one five-year-old when she saw the cartons being loaded into boxes for delivery.

Last stop on the hour-long tour of the plant was the breaking room where dozens of eggs are broken out of their shells and put into a huge beater machine which slowly blends the yolks and whites. The mixture goes from the beater to a large vat which filters and homogenizes it. It is then drawn off into 40-pound pails and sharp frozen, all ready for the baking trade during the winter when eggs are in short supply.

"Boy you could sure make a giant eggning in that," remarked one youngster when he saw the big beater.

Taking in this tour, the last one of the season, were Ian Mylet, Michael Young, Gary Carmichael, Claire Rogers, Raymond McIlreath, Hugh Wainman Wood, Douglas Van Sickle, Alison Young, Mary McAllister, Bill Gladwell, Glenna Cooke, Pat Leask, Paul Williams and Alison Rogers.

Katy Ann Davidson and Leslie Liersch were unable to make this particular tour but did take in others during the year, which included a trip to the Provincial Museum, Victoria Public Library, Oak Bay Fire Hall, Ruddy's Pet Park, Undersea Gardens and a pet shop.

Symphony Society

Don't Forget Us In Bastion Plans

Although the Victoria Symphony Society has found a Centennial Square home for the school of music it is establishing, it does not want to be left out of the development of Bastion Square.

In a letter to Mayor Wilson, society president Jack Barrackough says the society, through the generosity of a benefactor, has acquired the Union Building on Pandora for the new music school and the society offices.

While accommodation requested from the city would not be immediately required, Mr. Barrackough points out, the musical group did not want to be forgotten.

He said he hoped the city would include in its plans a building large enough for symphony rehearsals and women's committee activities. The new building in Centennial Square did not provide the space the society expected to acquire in the Healey Building in Bastion Square.

Mr. Barrackough said he hoped the Healey Building would be used for the general development of arts and crafts. He anticipated further discussion on the subject with the mayor.

Names of the school of music faculty members, under the direction of symphony orchestra conductor Otto Werner-Mueller, as given by Mr. Barrackough, included: Arthur Polson, symphony concert master; Hans Siegrist, cellist; Dwight Peltzer, and Stanley Shale, pianists.

Tyrrel F. C. Salt

Funeral Rites Thursday

Funeral services will be held Thursday for First World War veteran Tyrrel F. C. Salt, who died Monday at 78.

Mr. Salt was born in Sheffield, Eng., and was a resident of Victoria for 50 years. During the First World War, he served overseas with the 50th Gordon Highlanders.

He was a member of the Camosun Lodge No. 60, AF & AM and the Red Chevrons.

Surviving are his wife, Margaret, at home, 6469 Welch Road, Central Saanich; a son and daughter-in-law, William T. and Evelyn Salt, Calgary, Alta.; several grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Vera Pepper, Victoria; nephews and nieces in Victoria.

Service will be in Hayward's Chapel, 1:30 p.m., Rev. E. W. S. Gilbert, officiating. Burial will follow.

Alberni Strike Parley Today

Peterson, Two Mayors to Meet

Labor Minister Peterson will meet the mayors of Alberni and Port Alberni in his office at 10 a.m. today to discuss the strike crisis in the Alberni Valley.

Mr. Peterson said last night the meeting was arranged during the day in a telephone talk with Mayor Les Hammer of Port Alberni.

The minister also reported no new developments in his department's attempts to end the walkout. The Labor Relations Board is to hold separate talks with the office union and MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. in Vancouver this week.

FERRY DID SEEN
While in Victoria, the mayor may also attempt to see highways department officials regarding the threatened loss of the Mv Lady Rose on the Alberni-Bamfield run. The ferry may lose a $1,900-a-month subsidy from the department because of the recent completion of the Alberni-Bamfield road.

The last time Mayor Hammer and Mayor Fred Bishop of Alberni stepped into the office dispute was a proposal in a telegram to Mr. Peterson that a mediator be named.

Nothing came of the idea.

MAYOR'S MOVE

The initiative for today's meeting was taken by Mayor Hammer at a meeting of his city council Monday night.

Declaring that "something can be done and something must be done," he disclosed he was trying to arrange the meeting.

"We have been told talks are going on," he said, "but if there are talks, they are veiled in mystery."

GIVEN BRUSHOFF?
Ald. Jack Perry remarked that newspaper accounts indicated the two mayors had been given the brushoff by Mr. Peterson and said "we should go direct to the premier."

Mayor Hammer denied any brushoff, saying, "We haven't been able to discuss it with the minister because we couldn't catch up to him."

BUSY MAN

"But this isn't his fault," he said. "He's a very busy man."

He said council is ready to be called into emergency session, if required, to deal with what he called "the worst setup this valley has ever seen."

Mayor Hammer added:

"I think there should be a system whereby the parties in a dispute such as this should be required to face each other every second day, to remain in session for at least two hours three times a week, whether or not they had anything to say to each other."

Town & Country Stores

AERIAL VIEW of Town and Country shopping centre shows present layout. Woolco department store is rising behind.

New World's 'Town Square'

Six years ago the planning started. Surveys showed that 30,000 people lived within five minutes' driving time of the old Saanich municipal yard and 80,000 were within 12 minutes.

Dominion Construction Co. began quietly taking up options on land in the area, then eventually the announcement was made.

A new shopping centre—a "community centre"—was to be built at the intersection of the Trans-Canada and Pat Bay Highways.

It was to be called the Town and Country.

The rest is history. Though part of the story is still being written.

And more will undoubtedly be added in future.

In the preparation of this supplement, every one of the more than 20 firms operating in the Town and Country were interviewed.

Every one expressed pleasure with the progress of his business.

That is a tribute to the original planners as well as to the firms involved.

And all the firms looked happily to the future opening—next fall—of the huge Woolco department store that is now being built "behind" the original Town and Country spread.

To the merchants of Town and Country this addition appears as a further challenge.

It will bring more people to the already busy market place.

It will give them a chance to improve their services even further, to make Town and Country even more a "community centre."

One thing which became apparent during the preparation of these pages was the remarkable affinity between this shopping centre and the market places and town squares of other lands and other times.

Town and Country in its three years seems to have evolved something of a way of life of its own.

It's more than just a shopping trip to go there.

It's a family affair, often as not. It's a break for coffee, a chat about the new fishing gear, dinner out to give mom a treat—and don't forget to get those shoes fixed or that hair cut.

This is all part of the success of Town and Country.

And it is the success of this shopping centre that is being celebrated this week with special sales and fun and contests, details of which—and of the prizes, which are topped by a trip to Alaska and the Yukon—are outlined in these pages.

Roma's a Newcomer But Not to Business

Comparative newcomer to the Town and Country shopping centre is Roma's ladies' wear, which opened a year ago in April.

Stressing service and a friendly atmosphere, Roma Mattinson, the owner, and her able assistant Mardy Hodgkinson have found a warm reception from women looking for dresses, suits, coats and sportswear in the medium-to-better quality ranges. Roma herself brings 25 years of women's fashion experience to her new shop.

She moved here with her husband from Kelowna, where she had been associated with a local firm, and before that had run her own store in North Vancouver.

The Mattinsons are "completely sold" on life in Victoria.

PLENTY OF PARKING is one big factor that draws shopping Victorians to Town and Country shopping centre at the junction of the Trans-Canada and Pat Bay highways. Well-lit, clearly marked lot makes it easy to pop down to the store for special items or a full week's shopping, secure in the knowledge that there will be no parking problem once you get there. Bowling fans and others who are likely to park longer than most meters allow don't need to panic, either, about tickets or tow-away. The Town and Country shopping centre just eliminates such problems, makes a trip to the store a pleasure.

CUNNINGHAM'S FRIENDLY PLACE

Bakery Sells to Families

If proof be needed that Town and Country is a family shopping centre, Town and Country Bakery can provide it. Customers keep manager Fred Perry and his staff of six busy turning out layer cakes, homemade and fancy breads and sweet buns by the dozen—the family size orders.

Nevertheless, the bakery is a complete facility capable of turning out everything in the bakeshop line, right through tarts, bars for lunch and coffee breaks, up to the small, fancy cakes for the most formal occasion.

Business has boomed for the little shop during the three years it has been operating, to the extent that right now it is trying to find some way to get bigger premises in the Town and Country spread.

So that it can bake even more good plain bread, French loaves, cobs, buns, cakes and what-have-you every day right on its own premises.

Cunningham's, the big drug store layout at the Town and Country shopping centre, has just about everything. For emergencies and for leisurely specialty shopping too.

The store, which has been winning so many friends for three years of its existence that it bids fair to becoming the biggest in the province-wide Cunningham chain, has almost everything.

Not just for medical emergencies—though the prescription department, the pharmacy proper—is the true heart of this as any drugstore.

WIDE STOCK

But for the milder emergencies too—such as a forgotten birthday, unexpected guests, a new baby, Cunningham's, the modern drug store, stands ready to serve with its fantastically wide range of stock.

Not that it is just an emergency store. Its staff, headed by manager Vic Hartley and his assistant Cliff O'Neill, are able and prepared to take time to help you with your purchases, whether greeting cards or model kits, cough medicines or baby scales or film projectors.

Mr. Hartley has a long record of experience in the Cunningham organization, having started as a delivery boy with the firm in Vancouver.

RODE BIKES

He became a store manager there but in 1954 he and his wife took a fateful trip—they rode bicycles from Comox to Victoria, decided the Island was the place to live and Victoria the place on the Island.

He became manager of the old Cunningham store at Fort and Douglas until the Town and Country branch opened.

He hasn't regretted his switch to Island life.

"I only visit Canada now under pressure," he says. His assistant, Cliff O'Neill, has lived in Victoria since childhood, though he worked as a pharmacist in Interior B.C.

LOCAL PRODUCTS

Most of the girls on the Cunningham staff are local products, too, Mr. Hartley says. "In fact, the most prominent feature of this store is its friendliness," Mr. Hartley adds. "But even if you're the surly type, you can take advantage of the self-service layout, spin through the two check-out desks and be gone without saying boo. You can do it. But you'll be missing something."

Just a Birthday For New Method

For New Method Laundry the third anniversary of their Town and Country outlet will be just another birthday. Most Victorians are familiar with the yellow and black delivery trucks of the company as it has been established here since 1965 — almost 70 years.

New Method has four other call offices besides the one at Town and Country and its main plant at 947 North Park Street which is the largest laundry and dry-cleaning plant on Vancouver Island. Lately the company has been averaging one new call office every two years. Its newest is located at Hillside and Shelbourne streets. New Method might be known well for its fleet of trucks but it is also noted for the results of its famous Sanitone dry cleaning process. Sanitone is an amber-colored mineral oil which is used as an additive to the cleaning solvent. It blends with the cleaning fluid and proves to be the major factor in removing stains which have a water base such as beer, tea or milk. New Method Laundry has 150 employees to help give you fast dry-cleaning service. And don't forget that fleet of 21 yellow and black trucks.

SPLENDID CHANCE to get in a quick session of bowling is offered at Town and Country shopping centre where the bowling lanes are located conveniently next door to the self-serve dry-cleaners. This is a typical feature of the "town square" aspect of Town and Country shopping centre.

But Does Give Fishing Tips

Sportsman Outfoxed Himself

Ross Owen, owner of the Sports Centre at Town and Country, outfoxed himself when he went into the sporting goods business.

"I opened a sporting goods store because I'm very fond of the outdoors. But since I've been at Town and Country I find I don't have any time for it," he says.

Mr. Owen is an avid angler who also enjoys upland game bird shooting.

The Sports Centre's unique store front of alder and cedar logs takes the shape of a cabin he hopes to build some day on a lake shore.

"We try to build our business on service. The customer gets what he wants—not what I think he should have in cost value," Mr. Owen says.

"We will properly equip him for the sport he is interested in as well as suit his pocketbook."

A special service of the Sports Centre is up-to-date fishing information.

All an angler has to do is telephone 362-1132 any time of day or night and he will hear a recorded message containing weather conditions and the latest reports on where the big ones are biting and what lures to use.

"I have a network of spies who call me up to let me know where they are catching their fish so the information is coming right from the fisherman's mouth," Mr. Owen commented.

ALL SPORTS

Besides fishing, hunting and camping supplies, the Sports Centre stock contains equipment for all sports including golf, tennis, swimming, baseball, hockey and indoor games.

Also working in the shop is his wife Win, an excellent skier, and his 17-year-old son Glen.

Some Customers Can Be All Wrong

When it comes to operating technical camera equipment, sometimes the customer is not always right.

Jus-Rite Photos, located at Town and Country shopping plaza and at 716 Yates Street, realize this and are always ready to talk to customers about their camera problems.

"When we make a sale, we want to make sure the customer gets good results. We will be only too happy to show them what they are doing wrong," said manager of the downtown store, Drew Waterworth.

Manager of the Town and Country branch is Mrs. Herta Barlowen.

Mr. Waterworth attributes the "homey atmosphere" of his shops as one of the main reasons why customers keep coming back—even if just for advice.

Jus-Rite carries all well-known lines of cameras, projectors and other accessories such as Kodak, Fujica, Yashica and Zeiss.

They also develop in color and black and white as well as self-darkroom supplies.

"And if there's anything we don't have, we'll get it," said Mr. Waterworth.

Jus-Rite Photos Ltd. has been serving Victorians for more than 40 years.

Realty Firm New But Well-Known

Town and Country Realty is the rental agent for the shopping centre which is now celebrating its third birthday. But

... really head

It is also far more than that. Town and Country Realty is a name which has become well known all over Vancouver Island in a surprisingly short time.

The firm was formed only 18 months ago, about a year and a half after the shopping centre opened.

It is headed by Chet Sinden as president, Gordon A. Holston is vice-president, and H. A. Lipsey is secretary-treasurer.

Primarily a real estate firm, it operates a building department which has been instrumental in bringing into existence a number of developments, among them Northridge Terrace, Queensbury Heights and Regency Heights in Gordon Head.

Its staff of 15 salesmen are also prepared to look after mortgaging and insurance needs of its clients.

He Knows His Paint From Barns to Arts

If there's one man in town who knows paint it's Jack Okell of Rapco Paint's Town and Country store.

He should. He's been in the business for more than 20 years both as a salesman at Rapco's downtown store at 719 Yates St. and as manager of the Town and Country outlet.

"We'll match a color to anything within reason," Jack says. Rapco paint colors are mixed to your satisfaction by a pneumatic blending machine.

DO IT BY HAND

"And if there is anything we can't match by machine, we'll do it by hand," Mr. Okell said.

A free service of Rapco is advising home owners on their choice of colors. Color expert Peter Balgamo will visit your home to help you pick anything from floor finishes to ceiling shades.

The Town and Country store is also an outlet for the famous Armstrong floor tiles.

ARTIST SUPPLIES

"We will help the customer do the measuring of the floor surface and estimate the number of tiles he will need. We also sell the adhesives to apply them," said Mr. Okell.

Another feature of the Rapco paint supply store is that a full range of artist supplies are kept in stock.

They are equipped to serve both the student and the professional with products manufactured by Grumbaker and Reeve's.

With all these customer services and attractions, it is little wonder that the British American Paint Company is now the largest in Western Canada.

KEN Jones family ...

VI ... takes over

Instruction Set For New Bowlers

MRS. JAMES ... flavors galore

Grandpa's Passion In Fashion

Belief that tastes haven't changed very much since granddaddy's day has been proven correct in the three years since the Town and Country shopping centre has been open.

Peter's Ice Cream parlor, right next to the cool, tree-lined mall, has been packing them in every day of the year (except Christmas Day, the only time you'll find Peter's closed).

And now, with summer coming along and bringing with it demands for ice cream from all sizes and all ages, Peter's has swung over to summer hours.

The store will be open 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., except Sundays and holidays when the hours will be noon to 10 p.m., says the manager, Mrs. Lillian James.

Maybe not quite every flavor of ice cream conjured up by the inventive mind of man and child is at hand, but Peter's does offer the widest range in Canada, along with such specialties as ice milk.

And another "first"—it's called Lo-N-Lo. Low in calories, low in sugar (being sweetened with sucral) it is specially tempting to the palates of both diabetics and dietetics.

Candy Shop Their First 'Specialty'

Alec and Flossie Broomes have been in the retailing business for more than 35 years but their Town and Country Candy Bar is their first specialty shop.

They came to Victoria from Maple Creek, Sask. They were in the general store business in nearby Golden Prairie, where they sold everything from appliances to groceries and propane gas.

One of the features of their Candy Bar store is that the customer is able to buy his chocolates and candies in bulk to save him money.

ENGLISH TOFFEE
A specialty of the house is English toffees and fruit drops which are sold direct from huge, old-fashioned candy jars. But if you want candy in pretty boxes to please your best girl, you will find the Candy Bar has the best selection in town.

The Broomes also carry a full line of greeting cards and gift wrapping.

KENYA CARVINGS
And if you are looking for unique gifts, the Candy Bar features authentic wood carvings from Kenya of antelope, camel and other animals native to Africa.

Town and Country Lanes, formerly known as Loomer Lanes, has made a big strike recently with city five-pinner as a result of an intensive instructional program.

Man behind the new program, which got underway last winter, is Ken Jones, manager of Victoria's largest exclusive five-pin house. Town and Country Lanes has 24 bowling alleys all of which are equipped with automatic pin-setters.

Other members of the instruction staff are his wife, VI, who is the assistant manager, and well-known city bowler Joe Reid.

EXPECTS MORE

Mr. Jones expects many more Victorians to be introduced to the healthful recreation of bowling this winter when his instruction program shifts into high gear.

Town and Country Lanes will be closed July 28 to Aug. 8 to provide new surfaces on all alleys prior to the opening of the fall bowling season.

Each lane will be mended and re-lacquered to specifications set by the American Bowling Congress. The approaches will also be given new surfaces.

ENLARGED PLAYROOM

Other changes planned are more leagues for ladies—a result of the instruction program—and enlarged playroom facilities for children whose parents are bowling.

Color scheme changes are also on the drawing boards to enable bowlers to concentrate on the pins more easily.

Although Mr. Jones is new to Town and Country Lanes, he is well-known among city trundlers.

He is a past president of Victoria Five Pin Association and represented the city on Pacific Coast Five Pin Championship Tournament teams.

Mr. Jones is also a former captain with the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) and has coached and managed several army sports teams.

Reitman's Has New Manager

Newest thing about Reitman's fashion store in Town and Country—apart from the fashions themselves—is the manager, Elizabeth J. Howe, while not new to the store, has just taken over its direction. And she happily reports that Reitman's decision to expand to Vancouver Island when the Town and Country shopping centre opened three years ago has proven to be a profitable one—not just for the company but for Victoria's fashion-conscious buyers too.

STORE SUCCESS

For the store, which was 15th in the chain when it opened, has proven so successful that another was opened here.

It is a departmentalized fashion store, with coats, dresses, sportswear, suits, lingerie and accessories each having their own niche and wide selection.

And Victoria's women profit by having in Reitman's a branch of one of the largest fashion store chains in North America, an organization that is able to maintain a New York buying office to watch innovations in fabrics and fashions and to get them to Victoria in the shortest possible time.

ALL GUARANTEED

Every purchase made in a Reitman store is backed by an iron-clad, money-back guarantee and the assurance of first-quality merchandise at the lowest possible price, made possible by the size of the chain.

Reitman's have been serving fashion-conscious Canadian women for 33 years.

Small Store, Big Name, Big Reputation

Agnew-Surpass Family Footwear Ltd. might seem a long name for a small shop, but it is one of a chain making up Canada's largest footwear retailers.

The Town and Country outlet is one of 170 stores coast-to-coast featuring shoes from top Canadian manufacturers and designers. Brands featured are Savage, Greb Hush-puppies and Dominion Rubber tennis shoes.

A wide variety of matching handbags are also in stock to set off high-styled shoes. And service is never a problem at Agnew-Surpass. There is a staff of three full-time and three part-time sales people. Two more will be added to help when the store marks its third birthday with a sale running Wednesday to Saturday. Store manager Moe Jensen was posted to the Town and Country store, which carries 10,000 shoes in stock, in May of 1962.

A native of Edmonton, Mr. Jensen has had much experience in the footwear business with seven previous postings in Edmonton and Calgary.

OLD-FASHIONED switchboard, one of earliest used by B.C. Telephone Co., is typical of the old-time instruments that will be included in the

82 YEARS AGO

First B.C. Phones Rang in Victoria

Victoria has had telephone service for more than 82 years.

Sixteen years after incorporation, and just two years after Alexander Graham Bell patented his invention, telephony came to the capital in the form of two instruments ordered by R. B. McMicking for demonstration purposes.

In reporting the arrival of the first telephones, the Colonist of March 22, 1878, stated, with considerable reserve: "Mr. McMicking, superintendent of the B.C. Telegraph, received a commission of telephones yesterday. Persons standing 15 miles apart can hear each other speak."

While they were not the first to be used in the province (W. H. Wall, a Dunsmuir employee, produced a couple of home-made sets at Wellington the previous year) Mr. McMicking's instruments were the start of commercial telephony in British Columbia.

Test Talks

Experimental conversations took place between the telegraph office and the office of the Colonist with a view to setting up a regular telephone system in the provincial capital. That was to come later.

In the meantime, W. J. Jeffries, who operated a clothing store on the north-west corner of Government and Yates Street and who was also silent partner and relative of W. J. Pendray who operated a soap works on Humboldt Street, also became interested in the telephone.

He went to San Francisco in 1879 and came back with some instruments combining both transmitter and receiver. After talking, the instrument was taken from the lips and placed to the ear so that the person on the other end of the line could be heard.

On Jan. 21, 1880, the two firms were connected by telephone.

The same year Mr. Mc-

McMICKING ... bought two phones

Micking succeeded in getting a group of Victoria men interested in the new communications medium. One of them being Edgar Crow Baker who was appointed secretary-treasurer of a company known as the Victoria and Esquimalt Telephone Company.

James H. Innes was president, and other directors included Robert P. Rithet, James D. Warren, Alex A. Green and Edward A. McQuade.

The original telephone office was in a small shack in Trousseau Alley. Later it was moved further along the alley to premises in the Green Building and then was transferred to the Five Sisters Block.

When a merger of telephone companies in the province took place later, including the Victoria organization, resulting in the formation of the British Columbia Telephone Company early in the present century, R. B. McMicking continued as manager in Victoria until his death in 1915.

Over Mud Flats

Early residents of the capital may remember that where the Empress Hotel stands there were once mud flats traversed by a wooden bridge. The telephone lines extended between poles 800 feet apart over this portion of what is now James Bay, and for several years the first job of linemen each morning was to clear the wires which became tangled when seagulls flew into them.

In the days when electric lighting and electric railways were being introduced, telephone companies had great trouble with induction, which often made telephone conversations unintelligible.

In Victoria an effort was made to get away from the trouble by erecting poles 80 feet high. These carried as many as seven cross arms on which were strung scores of wires. About 1912 they were removed and most of the plant in the downtown area began to go underground.

Most Underground

Today, 70 per cent of telephone wires in the city are underground. Latest statistics show 88,000 miles of wire underground, with about 38,000 miles contained in aerial cable.

The next major centre to receive commercial telephone service on Vancouver Island was Nanaimo in 1887, with the establishment of a tiny switchboard in the fruit store owned by Edward George Cavalsky on Commercial Street.

By 1912, when Victoria was halfway into its first century as a city, 10 telephone exchanges had been established in various Island centres, including Courtenay, Chemainus, Duncan, Comberland, Sidney, Keating, Ladysmith and Union Bay.

Great Growth

Victoria itself had grown from 46 telephones in 1880 (the Colonist number then was "11" and Government House was "26") to more than 5,000 and Nanaimo had some 500 instruments in service.

BUT IT'S ONLY THIRD BIGGEST NOW

Gourmets Love Safeway

Although it is no longer (as it was when it opened) the largest Safeway store in British Columbia, the Safeway branch at the Town and Country shopping centre remains one of the busiest.

Turned a highly successful operation on the basis of its first three years, the big supermarket that anchors one corner of the long mall has been surpassed in sheer size by two others since it was built —one in Kamloops and one in Vancouver.

But the 22,000 square-foot store, largest single unit in the original Town and Country layout, continues to offer one of the widest ranges of goods of any Safeway in the province.

Its gourmet section, in fact, has proven especially popular. Such items as Italian lasagna and lumache, English jams, guava jelly, mango chutney, German sauerkraut, Dutch rusks and Oregon honeycomb can't be sold in every location.

Some places will go for them and some won't. Town and Country shoppers go for them.

Little about the store has changed, from the 700-pound mosaic Safeway emblem over the entrance to the magic-carpet doors and "spatnik" lighting inside.

Shelves have been held down to shoulder height so shoppers can get a clear view around the store in their search among the shelves for their needs and bargains.

In fact, the biggest change around the store is the manager. Vance Gill has been in charge the last few months. Before coming to Victoria he was in Richmond.

But there's nothing new about Safeway in Victoria. The firm opened its first unit here in 1929. For 35 years Victorians have been enjoying the economy and convenience of shopping at Safeway.

Shoeman Does His Footwork

Don Street, manager of Bata Shoes at Town and Country, has been serving his organization as a branch manager for only five years, but he's pretty proud of it.

The Bata organization is unique as a business enterprise. It is comprised of 73 independent companies, each governed by its company manager and own board of directors.

Sixty-five factories are operated throughout the world and each is supplemented by rubber plantations, hide collecting centres, tanneries, textile mills and other auxiliary plants.

62,000 EMPLOYED

Over 62,000 people of almost every race, creed and nationality are directly employed by Bata and countless more benefit by their vast organizational purchases of raw materials and machinery.

Others benefit by employment in construction programs and other expansion expenditures.

"During my five years as a branch manager I have completed two major footwear courses, receiving diplomas in each," Mr. Street said.

"In the capacity of manager, I have served the Victoria area for the past six months at Town and Country and at this time, I would like to extend my heartfelt appreciation to the people of Victoria for their continued patronage."

SHOES FOR ALL

Besides Bata shoes, Mr. Street's store also carries Hunter Brown and Bray's shoes for children in all fittings and a full range of men's dress and work oxfords.

Fittings are no problem in women's lines as sizes include B and AA fittings in all types of shoes as well as casual and semi-dress flats.

A stock of 8,000 pairs guarantees a good selection and satisfied customers.

There are 4,000 Bata shoe stores throughout the world, 150 in Canada including 20 in British Columbia.

The chain is celebrating its 25th anniversary this year.

Clogs a Bit Old Hat To New Canadian

Bill Pruim is a cobbler from Holland but he doesn't make wooden shoes. He just sells them.

Wooden shoes are a small sideline of his shoe repair shop on the mall at Town and Country Plaza. He sold 36 pairs of wooden shoes in his first year.

Bill, the owner of Hollywood Shoe Repair, knows shoes from the bottom up. He worked for two major eastern shoe manufacturing companies before setting himself up in the shoe repair business here in 1956. Originally from Amerdam, Holland, he became a Canadian citizen last December.

Bill is capable of any type of shoe repair job. He can rebuild as well as make specially designed footwear for orthopedic patients.

"I use only the best materials for my repairs — no Chinese or Japanese leathers," he says.

Besides stitching jobs to enable people to get full value out of their footwear, Bill specializes in dyeing shoes to match lady's handbag or clothing.

SHOE SPECIALTY

Another specialty of his shop is Tana shoe cleaner, imported from Holland.

"You can use it for any shoe or any color shoe there is," he claims.

Bill admits he is slower than other shoe repairmen but quickly adds: "I never get any complaints about my workmanship."

And when you come to shoe repairing it's workmanship that counts.

New Barber's Chair All in the Family

Business has been clipping right along for Bill Nesbitt ever since he opened his barber shop in the Town and Country shopping centre three years ago.

In fact, so well have the shavings fallen for the young barber that he found a few months after opening that he had enough business to warrant adding a third chair to the shop.

There remained then the problem of deciding who would be brought in to help himself and his assistant, George Dowler, keep Town and Country customers in trim.

But just as Nesbitt had had foresight in providing space for two extra chairs when he laid out his shop, he had also shown foresight in selecting his assistant.

For George Dowler had a son, Paul, and Paul was a barber. So what could be more natural?

Now Bill Nesbitt and George and Paul Dowler wield their shears jointly, equally determined as when they started to give the customer what he wants.

And it's not everywhere you get that. "Almost everyone who asks for a trim ends up with what is really a medium haircut," Nesbitt explains. "We try to find out just what the customer wants and we give it to him."

10 Years in Town 10 in Business

Mrs. Maud MacIsaac, owner of Babyland at Town and Country, wasted no time getting into the children's clothing business when she arrived in Victoria 10 years ago.

In fact she had her first children's wear shop on Quadra Street before she was here one week.

She came direct to Victoria from Letchworth, England, which she claims is the "first garden city ever built."

She has since sold her Quadra Street store to open at 2204 Oak Bay Avenue and opened her second shop at Town and Country three years ago.

The Town and Country store is managed by Mrs. Marjorie Murray.

In stock is everything a mother will need for children between birth and 12 years of age, including nursery equipment, baby carriages and play pens.

"The aim of our store," Mrs. MacIsaac says, "is to give a mother everything she wants for her children without having to walk too many steps."

"Babyland offers good quality merchandise at prices which will suit the average income."

WOOLCO BUILDING ... Town and Country's biggest single building adds new aspect to centre.

TO OPEN IN THE FALL

Huge Woolco Store Takes Shape As Town and Country's 'Star'

By mid-October, Greater Victoria shoppers will have a fourth large departmental store to call at.

For that is the provisional date set for the opening of Woolco Stores on the Town and Country shopping centre.

This $2,000,000 concern will offer under one roof everything the housewife (and husband) can ever need.

From the fridge and television, down to a dustpan or pack of cigarettes; you name it ... they'll have it.

And to make those long hours of wearisome shopping easier and pleasanter, Woolco is introducing a new self-service scheme.

Instead of having to wait precious minutes to be served by a busy attendant, just pick up your goods and pay for everything at checking out points at each of the two main entrances.

On the other hand, if you need help with any sort of problem, there will be 300 employees ever present to assist.

The main entrance will be through the present Woolworth store, which is due to close on Wednesday. The greater part of the structure will be situated behind the present shopping centre.

Extra Parking

Increased parking area will raise total car space to 1,500.

In addition to the usual departments, the store will have a garden shop and an auto accessory department, will even repair cars, but will not sell gas or oil.

For those who like to make a day of their shopping or for those who like a bite to eat with their morning cup of coffee, there will be the Red Grill, a restaurant seating 100.

A complete pharmaceutical department, a camera shop, men's wear department, sports shop and bakery all go towards making up the facilities which will be offered in the city's fourth largest store.

Largest Building

The 151,000 square-foot structure will provide an additional 111,000 square feet of retail space to the shopping centre which at present covers about 98,000 square feet.

The balance of the new building will be used for offices and warehouse space.

The new store will be the largest single building in the shopping centre.

Summer or winter, shopping conditions will be ideal due to the full air-conditioning throughout the structural steel and masonry structure.

Crash Program

A crash program to have the store ready for fall was begun in March this year.

One side of Seymour Avenue has been uprooted, seven houses have been moved and 70,000 yards of rock and earth have had to be hauled away to make way for the vast emporium.

It is one of the biggest excavation jobs ever carried out in such a short time in Victoria.

At present, bricklayers are still busy laying the mortar and bricks. But within no time, the building will be ready for the roof and then plasterers and interior decorators will be able to move in to put finishing touches to the store.

One of Biggest

Europe's Styles Speeded to City

Germaine Vivian of Germaine's Coiffures, Town and Country plaza, wants to help style-conscious Victoria women catch up with Europe.

"They're about two years ahead of us. Today, those high hair styles are out. Soft hair styles are in," she says.

The latest styles from Paris "have a lot less teasing and look as though somebody flipped brushes through it," she added.

"The new Angelique and Carrese styles make a woman look like a woman—not just like an ornament."

GERMAINE

CUTTING AWARD

Germaine has five years' experience in hairdressing and her specialty is cutting hair. She gained a cutting award in 1962 from Victoria Hairdressers Association.

"Hair cutting is most important. You can't shape the hair styles unless the hair is cut to it."

DESIGNS TOO

Germaine not only designs women's hair styles to suit them but also designed her Town and Country hairdressing salon to suit herself.

"My husband Ben did the drawings and I did the interior decorating. We both like interior decorating and I hope some day to design another salon."

OUR THIRD BIRTHDAY IN GREATER VICTORIA

VICTORIA IN THE

Town & Country

WHITE SPOT ... anchors one end of Town and Country mall.

WHITE SPOT MAKES ITS MARK

Even Victoria Drives in Now

It has taken a while, but even Victoria is getting used to the idea of a drive-in restaurant.

White Spot, the famous chain of Vancouver drive-in restaurants, opened its first branch on the island when the Town and Country shopping centre went into operation three years ago.

"We've been very well received right from the beginning," says supervisor Roy Parkinson. "And Victoria is gradually coming to accept car service."

BUILDING UP

"We find it is building up very rapidly from our initial experience here. Almost 70 per cent of our business was on the counters when we first opened, now the two are split almost 50-50."

By comparison, the Park Royal White Spot in West Vancouver gets well over half its business off the parking lot.

Victoria's White Spot has the largest coffee shop in the whole organization, its 70 seats just noosing out competitors.

CATERING OUTLET

Since it opened here, the White Spot has introduced an industrial catering outlet and is contemplating further expansion on Vancouver Island. Like the restaurant he manages, Parkinson himself has become acclimatized to his new home. He has just bought a new house for his wife and three boys.

"I dread the thought now

PARKINSON ... real convert that I might be called back someday," he grins. "I should really be on the Chamber of Commerce."

With the first for 28 years, he has worked in most of its branches.

SAUCE EMPLOYED

Although the famous "secret sauce" which has made Nat Bailey's hamburgers legendary from the time he first started selling them is imported from Vancouver, the pies, breads and buns are all produced in Victoria.

Success of the restaurant has been good enough to keep a summertime staff of 42 busy dishing out the hamburgers, deep fried chickens, fish and chips, clubhouse sandwiches and other White Spot specialties.

Silent Liberals Seared in House

OTTAWA (CP) — Eldon Woolliams (PC-Bow River) called on Prime Minister Pearson Tuesday to resign and turn the reins of government over to a cabinet colleague.

Mr. Woolliams said in the Commons that the prime minister did not tell the truth in the House on three different subjects — the flag issue, the controversial television film Mr. Pearson and the government's role in connection with Banff's unsuccessful bid for the 1968 winter Olympics.

He accused Mr. Pearson of misleading and deliberately misinforming Parliament. The prime minister had a responsibility to resign according to parliamentary tradition, divine law and natural law.

The Alberta MP said the prime minister had told the Commons on several occasions that he had seen the film documentary about himself twice. But last Friday the prime minister had flatly denied ever seeing the film.

"One statement must be wrong. They cannot both be the truth," Mr. Woolliams said the prime minister "convicted himself" Monday when he did not reply to the same charge.

Mr. Pearson was absent from the Commons while Mr. Woolliams spoke in a supply debate.

He said the prime minister misled the Commons about a letter from a group of Ontario university professors last month criticizing the government's flag design. The prime minister had said the letter was unsigned when in fact it was.

"Again the prime minister did not tell the facts and the truth in this House," Mr. Woolliams said.

The prime minister had said on another occasion that the government was represented at an Olympic committee meeting when it was not.

The Conservative MP said the government has "given information dishonestly" throughout the Pearson film controversy and Alvin Hamilton (PC-Quebec) had been expelled from the Commons Friday for pointing out this fact.

The government was bringing Parliament into disrepute. David Pugh (PC-Ontario-Boundary) said he did not know how the Liberals could sit quietly while these charges

Congress Sees Expanded War

WASHINGTON (AP)—Many Congress members indicated belief Tuesday that the Johnson administration has decided it is willing to risk war with Communist China to prevent communist forces from over-running Southeast Asia.

U.S. Bases Welcomed

THA VINH (AP)—Premier Nguyen Khanh of South Viet Nam made it plain Tuesday he would raise no objection to use of American bases on South Viet Nam for operations against Communists outside its borders.

Laos Talks In Warsaw

LONDON (AP)—The British government disclosed Tuesday that secret talks have started with Communist Poland to arrange an emergency Laotian peace pact.

Announcing that exchanges have gotten underway in Warsaw, a foreign office spokesman told reporters:

WASHINGTON (AP)—

President Johnson announced Tuesday he is dispatching to South Viet Nam a combination of military and diplomatic talent. Its task is to turn the tide of battle against the Communists in Southeast Asia.

Johnson accepted the resignation of Henry Cabot Lodge as ambassador to Saigon and named General Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, to succeed him.

SAD TO LEAVE

In Saigon, Lodge said that he was "sad to leave," after 11 months in the diplomatic job, but added: "I believe it is my duty to do everything I can to help Governor William F. Scranton of Pennsylvania to win for president."

Johnson told a press conference he will name a career diplomat, Deputy Undersecretary of State U. Alexis Johnson, to a new post of deputy ambassador at Saigon to assist Taylor.

SUCCESSOR TAYLOR

Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, 56, was named to succeed Taylor as chairman of the joint chiefs of staff. Wheeler has been army chief of staff.

In his biggest revision of top-level assignments so far, sources close to Johnson said, the president is seeking to make the best possible American effort to stop the Communist tide in Southeast Asia.

The move is the latest in a series of developments resulting from a basic administration decision to expand the war.

Senator George D. Aiken (Rep. Vt.) said he was apprehensive about "a general expansion of the war in Southeast Asia" but he added in an interview:

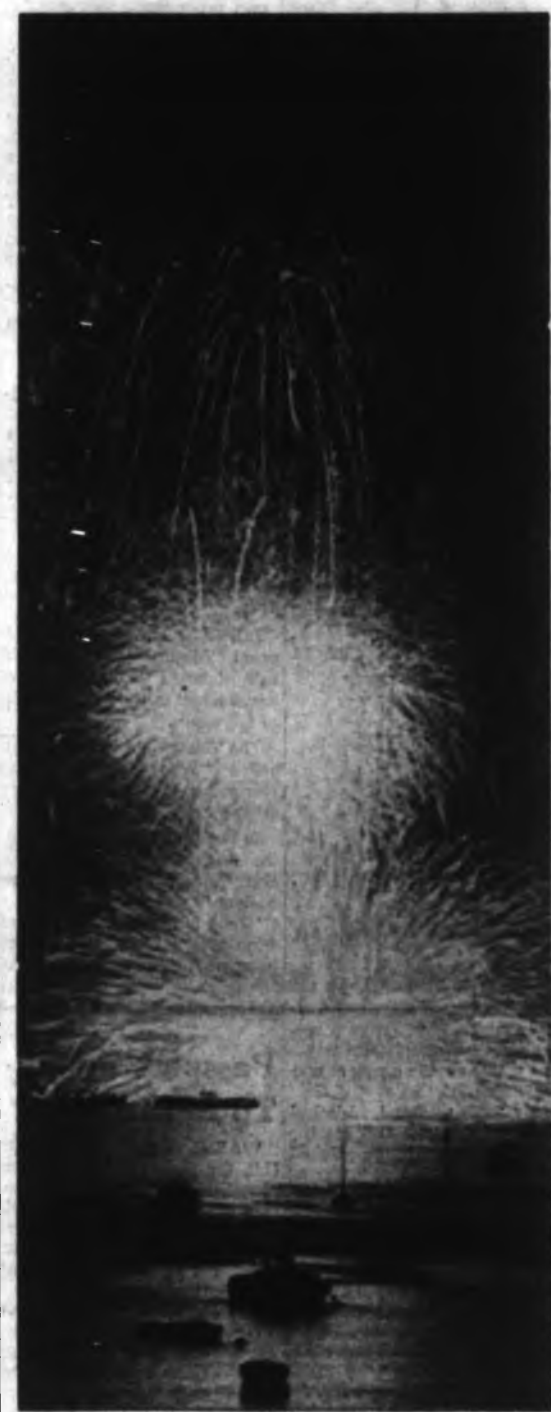

"I think they (administration officials) have made up their minds to expand the war."

Aiken, a member of the foreign relations committee, said he hopes that if that decision is made it would be based on "an understanding with Russia that Russia will keep hands off."

FEELING SHARED

Although few others on Capitol Hill would comment publicly on the situation, Aiken's appraisal that a decision had been reached appeared to be shared by many others after a series of week-end rumblings—above and below the surface—in official circles.

One of these came Monday when Gen. Paul D. Harkins, retiring after more than two years as U.S. commander in South Viet Nam, said it would be "very much" worth risking war with Peking to save South Viet Nam.

Macy's grand finale: Deadly, too.

Fireworks Blast Kills Two As 1,000,000 Look On

NEW YORK (UPI)—A fireworks barge exploded Tuesday in the Hudson River, killing two of its crewmen and sending rockets shooting toward a throng of about 1,000,000 persons lining the banks of the river for an annual fireworks display.

An hour earlier, another blast had rocked a national guard army where 800 young national guard troops were participating in weekly drills.

Fourteen reservists were injured, two seriously, when the explosion ripped through the 71st Regiment army's sub-basement ammunition room at East 33rd Street between Park and Lexington avenues.

Hundreds of thousands of persons lining the shores of Manhattan's upper west side and the New Jersey side of the Hudson witnessed the barge explosion during the annual Macy's department store fireworks exhibit.

"At first, the crowd couldn't comprehend what was happening," one witness said. "Instead of going straight up into the air, the fireworks were roaring toward Riverside Drive at 88th Street."

Chan Gets Papers

VANCOUVER (CP) —

Weldon Chan has proof now that he belongs in Canada.

Lawyer Harry Fox said Tuesday night that Chan has received his papers and is officially a landed immigrant. It has been a long wait — punctuated by 3½ years as a fugitive — for the man who came here from Hong Kong in 1958.

Palms

Doctors Outread Gypsies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Doctors reading your palm may be able to tell a far truer and possibly more unhappy story than the gypsies of old.

The knowledgeable doctor reading any part of your skin can tell much about what is going on inside, including the possibility of a heart attack. (See also Pages 2, 3.)

The story of the skin, the "mirror" of the body, was told Tuesday by Dr. Ben Kane of Vancouver at the annual convention of the Canadian Medical Association.

Traffic Signs

Dr. Kane, a dermatologist or skin doctor, said like traffic signs on the highway, the skin can tell the doctor to "stop, look and listen to the patient."

Expanding on his remarks at a press conference, he said a person with a yellowish, shaggy, like nodules on the corners of the eyelids could have too much cholesterol in the blood. Cholesterol is a fatty substance that has been blamed for causing heart attacks.

Diabetes, Too

He said rashes, itches and other signs can tell of diabetes within a patient and the lines of the hand could tell of abnormalities of development.

Changes in the hand when it was exposed to cold were an indication of a disturbance of circulation. A purplish-reddish color on the fingertips was an indication of Lupus Erythematosus, a disease that attacks many organs of the body and one that used to be highly fatal.

Storm Whips Into Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — A violent thunderstorm accompanied by high winds and heavy rain swept through southwestern Ontario Tuesday evening, leaving a trail of damaged buildings, broken power lines and fallen trees.

One unidentified Toronto man was struck by lightning and another was critically injured by a car. A man and woman were slightly injured in London when wind ripped part of the roof off a department store.

Attorney General Robert Kennedy cancelled his planned departure for Europe last night to keep in close touch with the situation.

NO TRACE

No trace of the young integrationists has been found since they dropped from sight Sunday.

The White House announcement said Dulles, former head of the Central Intelligence Agency, would confer with Mississippi officials in an effort to improve the state's racial climate.

DEEP CONCERN

The White House said that President Johnson had been in touch with Gov. Paul Johnson during the day, and that the president had expressed his deep concern over racial events in the state.

A statement issued by the White House said the president had asked Dulles "to go to Mississippi to meet with the governor, other officials of the state, the FBI and others who have information on the law enforcement problems that exist there."

WITH PRESIDENT

The parents of two of the civil rights workers, white youths from New York, were conferring with President Johnson when word came that the vehicle had been located. The president personally advised the parents of the development.

An FBI spokesman in Washington said the station wagon apparently had been burned Monday, but Mississippi Gov. Johnson said reports he received indicated the vehicle was still flaming when it was discovered.

VANISHED SUNDAY

The three youths dropped from sight Sunday after being detained on a traffic charge in Philadelphia, where they had gone to investigate a report of a Negro church bombing.

The three youths were identified as Andrew Goodman, 20, of New York, a Queens College student majoring in anthropology and sociology; Mickey Schwerner, 24, of Brooklyn, N.Y., and James Chaney, 21, of Meridian, Miss.

PRIMARY GOAL

Goodman and Schwerner are white, and it was the parents of these two who conferred with President Johnson.

All three were participating in the "Mississippi Project" — a desegregation drive for which white college students across the nation were recruited. Its primary goal, according to sponsoring civil rights group was Negro voter registration.

The station wagon was discovered about 12 miles northeast of Philadelphia, along state Highway 21.

MISSING TRIO ROUSES LBJ

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (UPI)—A station wagon belonging to three missing young civil rights workers was found gutted by flames in rural East Mississippi Tuesday, spurring President Johnson to order former intelligence chief Allen Dulles into the state.

Dulles

Florida Battles Continue

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP)—Negroes and whites clashed on the beach and on the streets Tuesday as civil rights demonstrators maintained their assault here on segregation.

During the third straight day of violence on the Atlantic beach, two women attacked praying demonstrators.

Hours later, a seething crowd of about 70 white men and women met 80 integration marchers at the Slave Market Square and broke through police lines twice.

As the marchers walked around the square, gangs of white youths chased them. One broke through police lines and grabbed a white woman marcher and attempted to pull her away.

Another white segregationist spat in the face of a Negro marcher. They were both arrested.

The latest incident came as Governor Farris Bryant and Attorney General James Kynes were subpoenaed to appear in a federal court Friday to show why they should not be held in contempt for banning night demonstrations here.

Vanier

Can Vanier Keep His Award?

OTTAWA (CP)—Was Governor-General Vanier's recent award from Italy approved by the Canadian government?

Should it have been cleared first with the federal cabinet?

These two questions were left hanging in the air after a brief exchange between Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition leader Diefenbaker in the Commons Tuesday.

Mr. Pearson said there has been no change in the policy followed for years—that awards and decorations by foreign states should not be accepted by Canadians unless approved by the Canadian prime minister.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked whether any cabinet order altered this policy in any way, remarking his question was prompted by "an announced award to a Canadian within the last few days."

Nobody mentioned Governor-General Vanier but informed sources indicated it may have been Mr. Diefenbaker's mind.

A government house spokesman said the Canadian government was not consulted about the award, made annually to heads of state.

The award to Gov.-Gen. Vanier was made by the Italian government tourist agency for Rome province. It was intended as a token of gratitude toward Canada and a reflection of the personal goodwill shown by Gov.-Gen. Vanier to Rome and to Italy during trips to Italy.

The presentation took place last Friday at Rome, where the Canadian ambassador, G. G. Green, received it on the Governor-General's behalf.

The classes begin July 5 in the pool at Queen Margaret's School and will be held every Friday morning for eight weeks.

Applications—use the form at left—must reach the Colonist office by 5 p.m. Friday, which leaves only three days.

Parents taking children to the Duncan sessions may park their cars on the gravel between the school's two new buildings or may use the Broadway Avenue entrance.

Mac-Powell Gives Land

Park for China Creek

PORT ALBERNI — Sixty acres of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. property at the mouth of China Creek has been given to the provincial government for park purposes. It was announced yesterday.

W. J. Loukes, Mac-Powell's Franklin River manager, announced at a Chamber of Commerce meeting that arrangements have been completed for a land exchange.

It was not learned what Mac-Powell will receive in exchange for the land, located on the south side of the creek at the estuary.

A marine park in the estuary area was first advocated some years ago by the late Douglas Mallory of the Chamber.

Mr. Loukes said road access to the public recreation area will involve part of the Mac-Powell Road and construction of a new road on the west side of the creek.

Talks in Victoria Today

Peterson, Two Mayors Meet on Strike

Labor Minister Peterson will meet the mayors of Alberni and Port Alberni in his office at 10 a.m. today to discuss the strike crisis in the Alberni Valley.

Mr. Peterson said last night the meeting was arranged during the day in a telephone talk with Mayor Les Hammer of Port Alberni.

The minister also reported no new developments in his department's attempts to end the walkout. The Labor Relations Board is to hold separate talks with the office union and MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. in Vancouver this week.

FERRY MID SEEN

While in Victoria, the mayor may also attempt to see highway department officials regarding the threatened loss of the Mv Lady Rose on the Alberni-Bamfield run. The ferry may lose a $1,900-a-month subsidy from the department because of the recent completion of the Alberni-Bamfield road.

The last time Mayor Hammer and Mayor Fred Bishop of Alberni stepped into the office dispute was a proposal in a telegram to Mr. Peterson that a mediator be named.

Nothing came of the idea.

MAYOR'S MOVE

The initiative for today's meeting was taken by Mayor Hammer at a meeting of his city council Monday night.

Declaring that "something can be done and something must be done," he disclosed he was trying to arrange the meeting.

"We have been told talks are going on," he said, "but if there are talks, they are veiled in mystery."

Ald. Jack Perry remarked that newspaper accounts indicated the two mayors had been given the brushoff by Mr. Peterson and said "we should go direct to the premier."

Mayor Hammer denied any brushoff, saying, "We haven't been able to discuss it with the minister because we couldn't catch up to him."

BURY MAN

"But this isn't his fault," he said. "He's a very busy man."

He said council is ready to be called into emergency session, if required, to deal with what he called "the worst tieup this valley has ever seen."

FACE EACH OTHER

Mayor Hammer added: "I think there should be a system whereby the parties in a dispute such as this should be required to face each other every second day, to remain in session for at least two hours three times a week, whether or not they had anything to say to each other."

Health Council Formed

DUNCAN—Hospitals in this area and on nearby Gulf Islands have formed the Cowichan, Newcastle and Islands Health Council.

Claude Green of Duncan was elected president and other officers are B. L. Sharp of Chemainus, vice-president, and H. Hoffman of Ganage, secretary.

Goals include:

- A study of area needs regarding acute bed facilities, nursing homes, home care programs, rehabilitation and psychiatric care facilities.

- Sharing physical facilities, medical staff and administration where appropriate.
- Co-operation with governments, doctors, planners and outside hospital groups.

Mac-Powell Valley Highway Sign Said

ALBERNI—The sign stayed up for 36 hours on the highway into the Alberni Valley, scene of the crippling Mac-Powell strike, before provincial highways department officials took it down. It read:

"Welcome to the beautiful Alberni Valley, owned and operated by MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd."

Strikebound Workers Getting Food, $1,200

A truckload of groceries and a large amount of money are to leave Victoria Saturday for workers at the strikebound Mac-Powell plant in Port Alberni.

William Gauld, Victoria representative of the Canadian Labor Congress, said last night 30 cases of canned goods and $1,200 have already been collected from Victoria trade unionists to help workers honoring the Office Employees' International Union picket line at Port Alberni.

Mr. Gauld said considerably more money is expected to be forthcoming when representatives of individual unions report back.

Duncan Council

Dyke Project Wins Favor

DUNCAN—City council has agreed to recommend construction of a 4,000-foot, $55,000 Cowichan River dyke to protect 200 lots now subject to flood threats each fall and winter.

Consulting engineer Russell Potter met council objections to the cost by warning that "a poorly constructed dyke is worse than no dyke at all."

He said he felt the $55,000 estimate is "quite reasonable and it would be a mistake to go into a project hoping to get it for much less."

In other major matters, council decided to study the request of Somers Lake residents for a waterline extension and signed a new contract with the RCMP, effective June 1.

Mayor Jack Dobson told council the next step in the dyking project would be to present it to the Cowichan-Kokish rivers flood control committee.

MEAN BUSINESS

"If we show we mean business," he said, "I'm sure they would convene to study the plans."

Mr. Potter said he had been advised the project could be built under the winter works program.

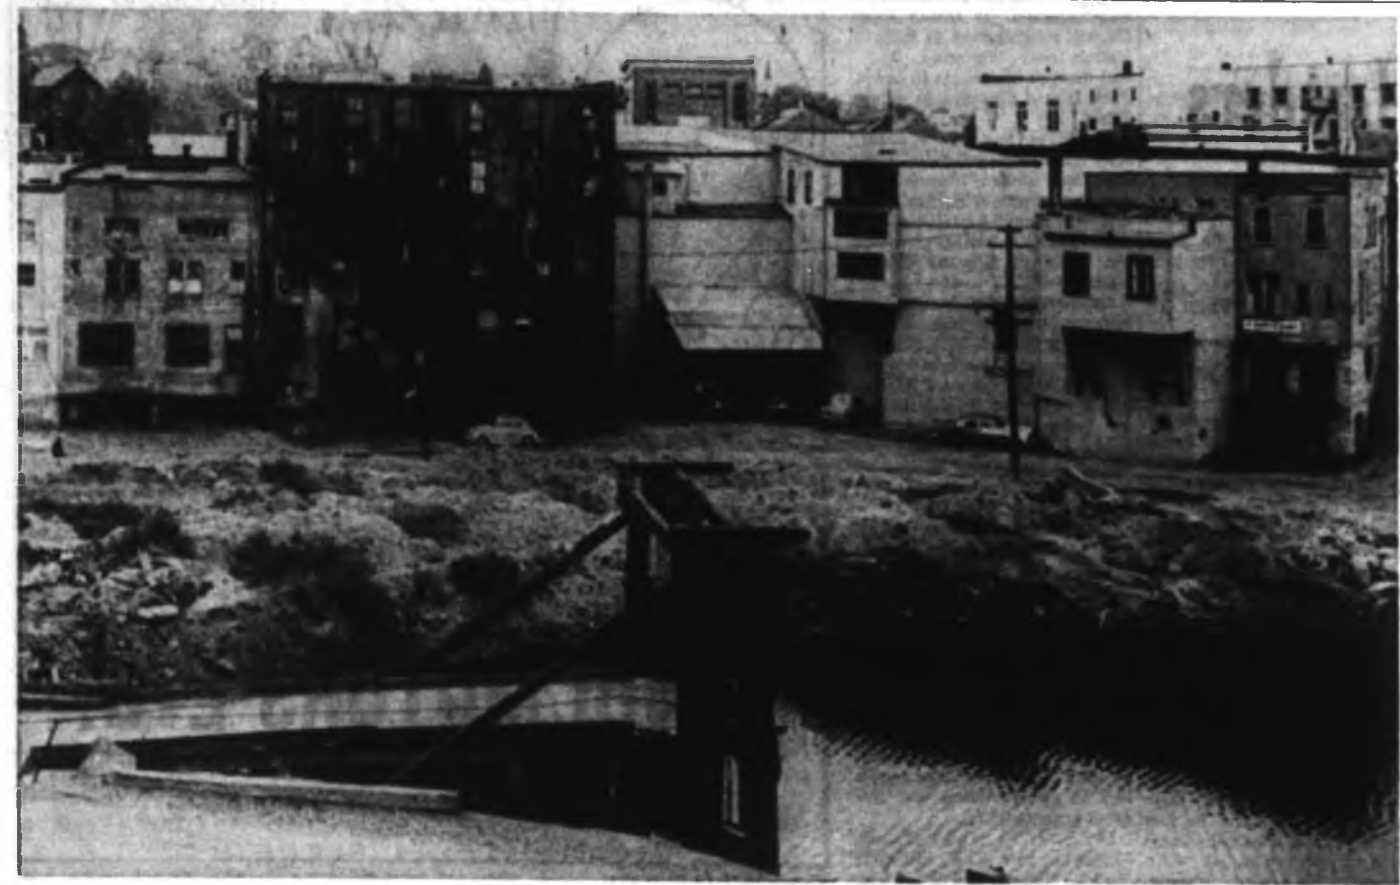

He said it would be reasonable to designate a flood protection area and put a frontage tax on the property in that area to pay for the dyke.

$50 YEARLY

He said the cost might be $50 per lot per year.

Breakdown of the $55,000: Clearing heavy undergrowth, $2,700; clay fill and top gravel, $1,320; dyke strengthening at pressure points, $3,750; added rock support, $1,000; drainage, culverts and a tide gate, $3,000; raising of Trunk Road to cross the dyke, $1,000; and two pumps and concrete supports, $15,000.

In the Somers Lake case, council decided to set a policy for all future water extensions. The Somers line would be two miles long, cost $40,000 and serve 69 residents.

West Coast Ferry Service

Gaglardi Bucks at Subsidy

Highways Minister Gaglardi said yesterday he's tired of helping out the federal government which refuses to pay adequate subsidies for West Coast ferry operations.

He was commenting on a letter from John Squire, NDP member for Alberni, pressing for provincial aid for the Barclay Sound Transportation Co.

Port Board Takes Over

Parks Merger Gets Tryout

PORT ALBERNI—Administration of Alberni parks by the Port Alberni parks and recreation commission this summer will prove whether merging the Twin Cities' parks groups is "really and truly workable," says Port parks director Duncan Russell.

He spoke after city council voted Monday night to approve the merger in principle.

Ald. Garnet Reynolds' motion instructs council members of the Port commission to act with council members of the Alberni parks and properties commission.

FACT BY SEPT. 30

Their goal is an agreement to go to the two councils for approval and ratification by Sept. 30. The Port commission, in running Alberni parks for the next three months, must not exceed its 1964 net budget and there must be no cost to Alberni.

Both councils also are concerned with the growing number of motorcycles and have asked the RCMP to check on operation of the vehicles.

CLASSES TOO POPULAR

Ald. Reynolds disclosed business has been too good for the Gyro Club's free swimming classes. He said the classes can accommodate only 425 beginners this year and another 200 youngsters had to be turned down by the parks and recreation commission.

An envelope half full of chips went the rounds in the council chamber as Cliff Walker of Kingsway Street protested airborne sawmill refuse he says is plaguing himself and his neighbors.

He said 58 residents signed an open letter to the president of the Tahsis Co. asking steps to ease the flyash condition.

ment's stand against making any subsidy.

"That's not my responsibility," the minister said.

He has written to Transport Minister Pickersgliff stating flatly the responsibility "very definitely" rests with the federal government alone.

END OF TETHER

"We have reached the end of our tether," said Mr. Gaglardi, referring to other west coast ferry operations where provincial subsidies are being paid.

This time, the minister added, unless the federal government increases its subsidy "things will be left as they are now."

SERVES INDIANS

Mr. Gaglardi said many of the people served by the ferry are native Indians and the provincial government sees no reason why it should move into an area of federal responsibility.

Mr. Squire charged: "Differences between Ottawa and Victoria as to who should accept full or part of the responsibility for subsidy should not be left to the resources of the transportation company."

UP TO PROVINCE

"The approximately 2,400 citizens of the area served are primarily the responsibility of the provincial government and it is your responsibility to see to their access problems the same as you do the residents of Texada or Denman islands."

No one has ever questioned the need for the service provided by the Barclay Sound Co., said Mr. Squire, and the highways department knows it is efficiently operated.

"Your department knows also that there is a real danger of insurance cancellation because of the financial trouble," he said. "This would mean an end to the service."

Mr. Squire said the importance of the area and the development taking place there warrants the granting of a provincial subsidy.

B.C. Credit Union Sees Assets Climb

By HARRY HARRIS

COURTENAY — Total assets of the B.C. Central Credit Union rose about 24 per cent last year, delegates to the organization's 20th annual meeting learned yesterday.

The Central Credit Union, which serves the financial needs of B.C. credit union and co-ops, reported assets of $21,737,000 at the end of 1963 compared with $17,513,000 a year before.

Loans to member-groups totalled $15,767,000 at the end of last year compared with $11,990,000 a year before.

DIRECTORS

The delegates unanimously endorsed a resolution declaring a five per cent dividend, totalling $84,000, to individual credit unions.

Elected directors were C. A. Perry, Victoria; J. H. Pratt, Port Alberni; Gordon Allan, Vancouver, and Holmut Krueger, Fruitvale.

Robert Williams of Victoria, a board member since the first annual meeting in 1944, was given an honorary life directorship.

In addition, if the city decides to begin a work program, the boys will be assigned to it.

Conditions Restrict Two Boys

DUNCAN—Two Duncan boys who stole 11 cents from downtown parking meters have received probation terms, with conditions, as their sentence.

One was put on 18 months' probation and cannot go downtown unless he is accompanied by an adult designated by the probation office. The other drew four months' probation and can't go downtown unless a parent is with him.

In addition, if the city decides to begin a work program, the boys will be assigned to it.

Chamber Urges Cleanup

Unattractive scene now in the back of several Nanaimo businesses but will be front of big Commercial Inlet development project when parking-expansion plan is complete. Chamber of Commerce is asking merchants to turn "eyesore" into scenic attraction by cleaning up in back.

Curls Crushed, Loggers Blushed

By LYNNE WALLER

NANAIMO — More than 100 loggers' wives toured the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River logging operations at Northwest Bay yesterday to the delight of the ladies and the trepidation of company officials.

Wives from Nanaimo, Parksville and Qualicum rode four crummys (buses) around part of the 70,000-acre holding to watch their husbands log some of the annual cut of 65,000,000 board feet.

The tour started at the main office with the issuing of hard hats which, let's face it, are not meant to be worn by women. However, safety rules are not taken lightly at this camp, so crushed curls were inevitable.

The wives were constantly on the lookout for their husbands and shouts of "There he is!" brought blushes to the face of many a hardened logger.

Traffic on the heavily-used roads kicked up a fair amount of grime, which led to such comments as, "I'll never nag him again about being so filthy when he comes home from work."

The crummys, practical rather than luxurious, feature straight-backed seats and a remarkable absence of shock absorbers.

One driver, perhaps confused by the giggles of his 24 charges, became very lost in the maze of roads but found the trail again with the help of a busload of natural-born backseat drivers.

Camp manager Bill Ewing and logging manager Dave Turner had information for any wives who were stumped by logging methods. But these women pride themselves on their knowledge of the industry.

Cowichan Problems

Trustees Talk Athletically

DUNCAN—Physical education problems and proposals were discussed as the Cowichan school board met Monday night.

Trustee Will Dobson urged greater development of athletic subjects and trustee Wilk Peck said it is difficult to obtain physical education experts unless facilities are available.

ONLY ONE NOW

Chairman Joseph Frumuto suggested track and field development at the district's two junior secondary schools since only one track now exists, at Cowichan Senior Secondary.

District schools superintendent Art Jones replied seven activity rooms have been built in recent years and are used as much as possible. He added all secondary schools have physical education instructors.

RID ACCEPTED

The board accepted a $25,400 bid from Peterson Construction for a George Bonner school addition, although it is $3,600 higher than the estimate in a referendum approved by voters.

The pilot-builder suffered head cuts, lacerations and bruises when a gust of wind hit the motorless craft as it was being towed by a car on take-off, pitching it 10 feet to the ground.

The craft, a wingless glider powered by a wind-driven rotor, seats one and can fly at speeds of up to 10 miles an hour.

As guest speaker at a Rotary meeting Monday, he explained several school policies.

He said maintenance is being organized so a program of work ordering can be established for the 21 school buildings on 20 sites from Beaver Creek to Franklin River.

GROWING NEED

Mr. Dyson also said sports facilities are being developed to take care of the growing need, and pointed out such facilities show the need for long-range community planning in the Alberni.

Ten all-weather soccer fields are being built this year and seven play slabs are on the program.

BICYCLE RACKS

In addition, the school board has authorized half a mile of chain link fences, backstops and five bicycle racks.

Mr. Dyson claimed most of the schools in this district have too much window area and not enough ventilation.

Congress Sees Expanded War

WASHINGTON (AP)—Many Congress members indicated belief Tuesday that the Johnson administration has decided it is willing to risk war with Communist China to prevent communist forces from overrunning Southeast Asia.

U.S. Bases Welcomed

TRA VINH (AP)—Premier Nguyen Khanh of South Viet Nam made it plain Tuesday he would raise no objection to use of American bases on South Viet Nam for operations against Communists outside its borders.

Laos Talks In Warsaw

LONDON (AP)—The British government disclosed Tuesday that secret talks have started with Communist Poland to arrange an emergency Laotian peace parity.

Announcing that exchanges have gotten underway in Warsaw, a foreign office spokesman told reporters: "These negotiations are confidential and so I can give no details about them."

FEELING SHARED

Although few others on Capitol Hill would comment publicly on the situation, Aiken's appraisal that a decision had been reached appeared to be shared by many others after a series of week-end rumblings—above and below the surface—in official circles.

One of these came Monday when Gen. Paul D. Harkins, retiring after more than two years as U.S. commander in South Viet Nam, said it would be "very much" worth risking war with Peking to save South Viet Nam.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson announced Tuesday he is dispatching to South Viet Nam a combination of military and diplomatic talent. Its task is to turn the tide of battle against the Communists in Southeast Asia.

Johnson accepted the resignation of Henry Cabot Lodge as ambassador to Saigon and named General Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, to succeed him.

SAD TO LEAVE

In Saigon, Lodge said that he was "sad to leave," after 11 months in the diplomatic job, but added: "I believe it is my duty to do everything I can to help Governor William S. Scrantom of Pennsylvania to win for president."

Johnson told a press conference he will name a career diplomat, Deputy Undersecretary of State U. Alexis Johnson, to a new post of deputy ambassador at Saigon to assist Taylor.

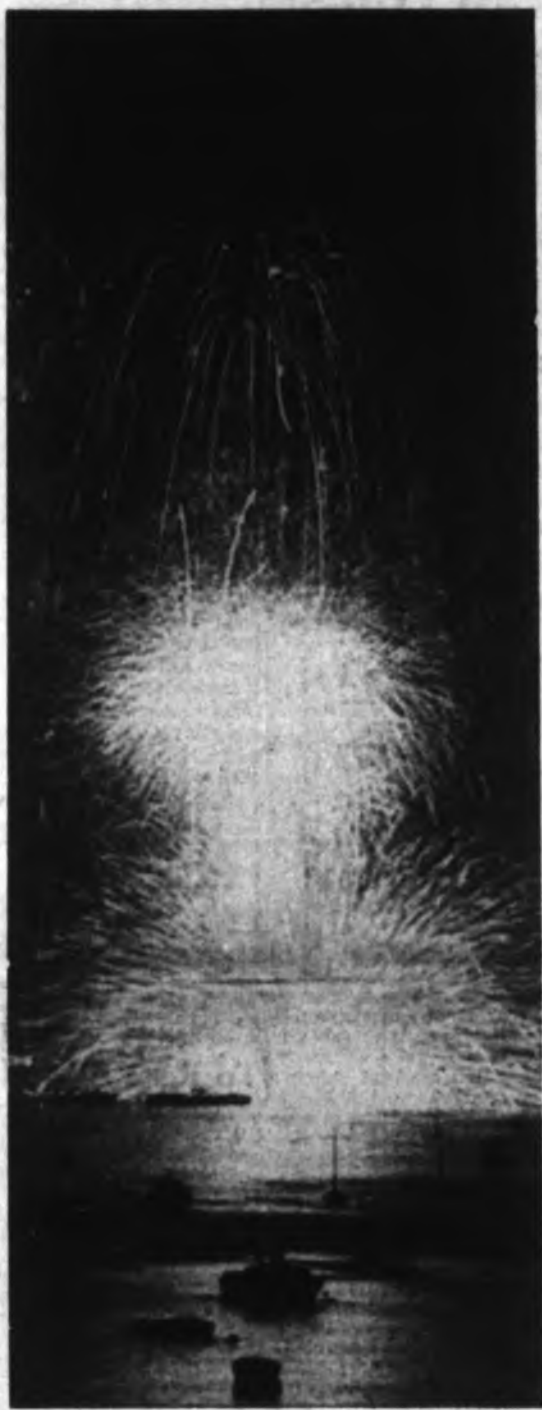

SUCCESSOR TAYLOR

Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, 56, was named to succeed Taylor as chairman of the joint chiefs of staff. Wheeler has been army chief of staff. His successor in that post was not announced.

In his biggest revision of top-level assignments so far, sources close to Johnson said, the president is seeking to make the best possible American effort to stop the Communist tide in Southeast Asia.

The move is the latest in a series of developments resulting from a basic administration decision.

Macy's grand finale: Deadly, too.

Fireworks Blast Kills Two As 1,000,000 Look On

NEW YORK (UPI)—A fireworks barge exploded Tuesday in the Hudson River, killing two of its crewmen and sending rockets shooting toward a throng of about 1,000,000 persons lining the banks of the river for an annual fireworks display.

An hour earlier, another blast had rocked a national guard armory where 500 young national guard troops were participating in weekly drills.

Fourteen reservists were injured, two seriously, when the explosion ripped through the 71st Regiment armory's sub-basement ammunition room at East 33rd Street between Park and Lexington avenues.

Hundreds of thousands of persons lining the shores of Manhattan's upper west side and the New Jersey side of the Hudson witnessed the barge explosion during the annual Macy's department store fireworks exhibit.

"At first, the crowd couldn't comprehend what was happening," one witness said. "Instead of going straight up into the air, the fireworks were roaring toward Riverside Drive at 96th Street."

Chan Gets Papers

VANCOUVER (CP)—Weldon Chan has proof now that he belongs in Canada.

Lawyer Harry Fan said Tuesday night that Chan has received his papers and is officially a landed immigrant. It has been a long wait—punctuated by 3½ years as a fugitive—for the man who came here from Hong Kong in 1958.

Lost Trio's Burned Car Rouses LBJ

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (UPI)—A station wagon belonging to three missing young civil rights workers was found gutted by flames in rural East Mississippi Tuesday, spurring President Johnson to order former intelligence chief Allen Dulles into the state.

Attorney General Robert Kennedy cancelled his planned departure for Europe last night to keep in close touch with the situation.

NO TRACE

No trace of the young integrationists has been found since they dropped from sight Sunday.

The White House announcement said Dulles, former head of the Central Intelligence Agency, would confer with Mississippi officials in an effort to improve the state's racial climate.

DEEP CONCERN

The White House said that President Johnson had been in touch with Gov. Paul Johnson during the day, and that the president had expressed his deep concern over racial events in the state.

A statement issued by the White House said the president had asked Dulles "to go to Mississippi to meet with the governor, other officials of the state, the FBI and others who have information on the law observance problems that exist there."

WITH PRESIDENT

The parents of two of the civil rights workers, white youths from New York, were conferring with President Johnson when word came that the vehicle had been located. The president personally advised the parents of the development.

An FBI spokesman in Washington said the station wagon apparently had been burned Monday, but Mississippi Gov. Johnson said reports he received indicated the vehicle was still flaming when it was discovered.

VANISHED SUNDAY

The three youths dropped from sight Sunday after being detained on a traffic charge in Philadelphia, where they had gone to investigate a report of a Negro church bombing.

The three youths were identified as Andrew Goodman, 20, of New York, a Queens College student majoring in anthropology and sociology; Mickey Schwerner, 24, of Brooklyn, N.Y., and James Chaney, 21, of Meridian, Miss.

All three were participating in the "Mississippi Project"—a desegregation drive for which white college students across the nation were recruited. Its primary goal according to sponsoring civil rights group was Negro voter registration.

Palms

Doctors Outread Gypsies

VANCOUVER (CP)—Doctors reading your palms may be able to tell a far truer and possibly more unhappy story than the gypsies of old.

The knowledgeable doctor reading any part of your skin can tell much about what is going on inside, including the possibility of a heart attack. (See also Pages 2, 3.)

The story of the skin, the "mirror" of the body, was told Tuesday by Dr. Ben Kane of Vancouver at the annual convention of the Canadian Medical Association.

Dr. Kane, a dermatologist or skin doctor, said like traffic signs on the highway, the skin can tell the doctor to "stop, look and listen to the patient."

Expanding on his remarks at a press conference, he said a person with a yellowish, shaggy-like mottle on the corners of the eyelids could have too much cholesterol in the blood. Cholesterol is a fatty substance that has been blamed for causing heart attacks.

Diabetes, Too

He said rashes, itches and other signs can tell of diabetes within a patient and the lines of the hand could tell of abnormalities of development.

Changes in the hand when it was exposed to cold were an indication of a disturbance of circulation. A purplish-reddish color on the fingertips was an indication of Lupus Erythematosus, a disease that attacks many organs of the body and one that used to be highly fatal.

Storm Whips Into Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—A violent thunderstorm accompanied by high winds and heavy rain swept through southwestern Ontario Tuesday evening, leaving a trail of damaged buildings, broken power lines and fallen trees.

One unidentified Toronto man was struck by lightning and another was critically injured by a car.

End Parley

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson and Premier Ismet Inonu, of Turkey, ended two days of talks Tuesday in agreement that a lasting solution to the Cyprus problem is an "urgent necessity" and must be found.

OTTAWA (CP)—Eldon Woolliams (PC—Bow River) called on Prime Minister Pearson Tuesday to resign and turn the reins of government over to a cabinet colleague.

Mr. Woolliams said in the Commons that the prime minister did not tell the truth in the House on three different subjects—the flag issue, the controversial television film Mr. Pearson and the government's role in connection with Banff's unsuccessful bid for the 1968 winter Olympics.

He accused Mr. Pearson of misleading and deliberately misinforming Parliament. The prime minister had a responsibility to resign according to parliamentary tradition, divine law and natural law. The Alberta MP said the prime minister had told the Commons on several occasions that he had seen the film documentary about himself twice. But last Friday the prime minister had flatly denied ever seeing the film. "One statement must be wrong. They cannot both be the truth."

Mr. Woolliams said the prime minister "convicted himself" Monday when he did not reply to the same charge.

Mr. Pearson was absent from the Commons while Mr. Woolliams spoke in a supply debate.

He said the prime minister misled the Commons about a letter from a group of Ontario university professors last month criticizing the government's flag design. The prime minister had said the letter was unsigned when in fact it was.

"Again the prime minister did not tell the facts and the truth in the House," Mr. Woolliams said.

The prime minister had said on another occasion that the government was represented at an Olympic committee meeting when it was not.

The Conservative MP said the government has "given information dishonestly" throughout the Pearson film controversy and Alvin Hamilton (PC—Qu'Appelle) had been expelled from the Commons Friday for pointing up this fact.

The government was bringing Parliament into disrepute. David Pugh (PC—Okanagan-Boundary) said he did not know how the Liberals could sit quietly while these charges

Florida Battles Continue

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP)—Negroes and whites clashed on the beach and on the streets Tuesday as civil rights demonstrators maintained their assault here on segregation.

During the third straight day of violence on the Atlantic beach, two women attacked praying demonstrators.

SEEKING CROWD

Hours later, a jeering crowd of about 70 white men and women met 80 integration marchers at the Slave Market Square and broke through police lines twice.

As the marchers walked around the square, gangs of white youths chased them. One broke through police lines and grabbed a white woman marcher and attempted to pull her away.

The latest incident came as Governor Farris Bryant and Attorney General James Kynes were subpoenaed to appear in a federal court Friday to show why they should not be held in contempt for burning night demonstrations here.

Vanier

Can Vanier Keep His Award?

OTTAWA (CP)—Was Governor-General Vanier's recent award from Italy approved by the Canadian government?

Should it have been cleared first with the federal cabinet? These two questions were left hanging in the air after a brief exchange between Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition leader Diefenbaker in the Commons Tuesday.

Mr. Pearson said there has been no change in the policy followed for years—that awards and decorations by foreign states should not be accepted by Canadians unless approved of by the Canadian prime minister.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked whether any cabinet order altered this policy in any way, remarking his question was prompted by "an announced award to a Canadian within the last few days."

Nobody mentioned Governor-General Vanier but informed sources indicated it may have been in Mr. Diefenbaker's mind.

A government house spokesman said the Canadian government was not consulted about the award, made annually to heads of state.

The award to Gov.-Gen. Vanier was made by the Italian government tourist agency for Rome province. It was intended as a token of gratitude toward Canada and a reflection of the personal goodwill shown by Gov.-Gen. Vanier to Rome and to Italy during trips to Italy.

The presentation took place last Friday at Rome, where the Canadian ambassador, G. G. Crean, received it on the Governor-General's behalf.
